WORLD'S LARGEST — The new Lockheed C5A "Galaxy" transport dwarfs President Lyndon B. Johnson and hundreds of other dignitaries in Marietta, Ga. for the plane's "rollout" ceremonies this morning. Welfare Cash Used To Buy Marijuana?

The Marin County Department of Public Social Services said yesterday 16 of the more than 60 persons arrested in last week's countywide marijuana and methedrine raids were receiving public assistance.

Donald Sanford, administrative services officer for the department, said he identified those on welfare from a list of arrested persons in the newspaper. The names of the 16 were not released by the department.

Of the total charged with selling narcotics, seven were on welfare. Of the seven, two were on aid to the disabled, three on aid to needy children's program, and two had received general relief at one time or another, Sanford said.

"In the case of these seven, where selling is suspected, we have stopped aid, pending a clarification of their income situation," said Sanford. If they had income from sale of narcotics, then fraud may be involved because they did not report such income while receiving aid, he explained.

"We have contacted the district attorney to investigate the possibility of fraud," Sanford reported.

Among those charged with possessing narcotics, six were found to be receiving public aid. Of the six, one was getting aid to the disabled, three were on

Johnson Inspects Largest-Ever Jet

MARIETTA, Ga. (UPI)— President Johnson, bound for a weekend vacation in Puerto Rico, stopped off here today to witness the "rollout" of the Lockheed C5A, the world's largest airplane and one which Johnson said marked a "long leap forward" in America's might.

Standing on a loading ramp leading into the cavernous craft, the Texas President jokingly allowed that "it would hold a lot of hay."

WITH FAMILY

The President was accompanied on the Puerto Rico trip by his wife, who flew from Washington to Georgia to meet him, his daughter, Luci, her husband Patrick Nugent, and their infant son, Patrick Lyndon.

The President marveled at the monstrous C5A, which is 246 feet long, or about twice the distance the Wright brothers covered in their first powered flight of an aircraft from Kitty Hawk, N. C. on Dec. 17, 1903.

Johnson noted it was higher than a six story building, and described it as "the biggest aircraft in the world.

"But," he said, "most important of all, for the first time, our fighting men will be able to travel with their equipment to any spot on the globe where we might be forced to stand—rapidly and more efficiently than ever.

'LONG LEAP'

"Today it would take 88 cargo planes to move an infantry brigade from Hawaii to Vietnam. Their heaviest equipment would have to go by water.

"That entire operation could be handled by 20 of these aircraft," the President noted.

An Army contingent, with its equipment parked nearby, marched aboard the four-engine jet aircraft to underscore the President's words.

The first test flight of the C5a is scheduled for June, 1968, and the craft is programmed to enter the operational by June 1969.

Johnson said the first C5A which he named the "Galaxy," could "only be described in extraordinary terms:

"It is the biggest aircraft in the world. Its cargo floor alone is longer than the first flight the Wright brothers made.

"Its jet engine is twice as powerful as any now in existence.

The plane can carry a maximum load of 265,000 pounds nearly 2,900 miles and cruise at a speed of 530 miles per hour. Its basic mission, however, is to deliver loads of 100,000 pounds over distances of 6,325 miles.

By comparison, the largest Soviet plane carries a maximum payload of 176,350 pounds at maximum level speed of 460 m.p.h. over a distance of 3,100 miles.

Had the C5A been available during the Berlin airlift, ten of them could have accomplished the same job which then required 300 British and American transports.

The C5A has two decks, can be loaded from either end and has room in its cargo hold to accommodate 16 three-quarter ton Army trucks at a time, and can park jeeps three abreast. It carries a crew of 6, an alternate crew of the same number, plus courier seating for 8 and an upper troop compartment for 75 soldiers.

While stressing the military values of the C5A, the President at the same time kept his speech non-belligerent, carefully changing the word "power" to "strength" in the more than 50 instances that it occurred in his prepared text.

Johnson defended the "re-

Gls Ambush Red Troops Near Air Base

SAIGON (UPI) — American paratroopers sprang a Viet Cong-style ambush on a company of 150 Communist soldiers near the big U.S. air base at Bien Hoa and killed 21 of them without suffering a casualty, U.S. military spokesmen said today.

The clash was one of two offensive actions in which U.S. and South Vietnamese paratroopers atttacked and routed Viet Cong forces threatening the two largest Allied air bases in South Vietnam. At least 56 Communist soldiers were killed in the two battles Friday.

Military spokesmen said a slightly larger Communist force, operating within a mile of the U.S. military headquarters complex at Tan Son Nhut air base outside Saigon, also was routed yesterday by a Vietnamese paratroop battalion.

The Vietnamese said they killed 35 Viet Cong in the battle, and described their own casualties as light.

Heavy fighting was reported far to the north, near Quang Tri City below the Demilitarized Zone. South Vietnamese infantrymen supported by armored personnel carriers engaged in battle yesterday morning and again last night with a large North Vietnamese force seven miles north of Quang Tri. The

Fleeing Burglary Suspect Threatens Teacher, Pupil

The teen-ager, Bobby Earl Whittington, was later captured and taken to Juvenile Hall. The teacher was unharmed.

Police gave these details:

About 1:30 p.m., the youth was spotted by neighbors removing furniture from the home of Barbara McKurth and Pearline Lewis at 2 Alto Avenue. Police said the youth had burgled the home Wednesday, and had returned to steal more items.

The neighbors called police, who frightened off the youth. He fled on foot and entered the Cedars Development School on the west slope of Red Hill, brandishing a hammer.

He threatened teacher Susan Conrad, who was alone with an adult pupil. He demanded money. Construction men working at the school casually entered the workshop class, and again the teen-ager was frightened off. The youth then ran into the Red Hill Shopping Center on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, entering a drug store. Police chased him through the store, knocking over several cases of soda.

The youth was caught at the rear of the store. He was charged with burglary, armed robbery and assault with a deadly weapon.

Police said the youth stole a color television set, wall clock, camera, movie projector, radio and typewriter from the house Wednesday. Yesterday, he left behind two beds, three chairs and an end table in a rented truck.

New Rights Bill May Be Dropped

WASHINGTON (AP) — Majority leader Mike Mansfield, D—Mont., indicated today the fight for a civil rights bill will be dropped if the Senate refuses a fourth time Monday to cut off debate.

"I have an idea this is the go-for-broke vote on cloture," he told newsmen.

The third effort to silence the prolonged Southern debate stalling the civil rights bill failed yesterday despite new support from Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen.

Mediators Wrestling With Teacher Strike

Students' Violence Flares

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —Two mediators using a weekend class recess, sought today settlement of a teachers strike that touched off a rash of student vandalism and forced cancellation of classes at midday yesterday.

LINES CROSSED

The striking teachers represent about 30 per cent of the city's 4,500 public school teachers. Most of the 2,600 members of the rival Classroom Teachers Association crossed the picket lines and branded the strike as an attempt "to create a tyranny of the minority."

At issue is the demand by the union for negotiations with the school board on 92 demands for educational reform. James Ballard, union president, has charged the school board acted in "bad faith" by refusing to negotiate most of the demands. Salary is not an issue.

Mayor Joseph L. Alioto met yesterday with the union and

Arabs Near Mideastern Peace Talks

CYPRUS (UPI)—Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser will accept a plan for Middle East indirect negotiations with Israel, a French newsman said today. Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said Israel is "actually maintaining various contacts with the Arab world."

Eduard Bergheaud, a political correspondent for the newspaper France-Soir said in Nicosia, Cyprus, that Nasser has told United Nations envoy Gunnar Jarring of his plan and is sounding out other Arab nations on it.

He said Lebanon, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Iraq have "declared themselves favorable" to the plan but Syria is hostile.

Under Nasser's proposal, Bergheaud said, both sides would communicate through the U.N. The Arab states would not recognize Israel as a state but would be willing to sign a non-belligerence pact guaranteeing "each state of the Middle East independence, peace and security inside its frontiers."

Anxious Mother Sees Her Son For Second Time In Nine Years

By DON BRANNING

Mrs. Beatrice Smith, a short, 62-year-old woman with pale strawberry hair, wearing a green flowered dress, sat in the visitors' cafeteria at San Quentin Prison this morning, musing half to herself about old anxieties.

Her son, Robert Chipp, 38, twice returned to the prison for parole violations, is serving one year to life for armed robbery, and the Seven Steps Foundation, convict organization, had brought her up from South San Gabriel, nead Los Angeles. She saw him for a few minutes in 1965, her only prison visit in nine years.

There were some photographers and reporters on hand for the event and Mrs. Smith had to wait for some time until Robert was brought from another part of the prison. She began talking about the way that he was when he was a child.

"He must have been a very unhappy child. He was always running away from home," she said. "I put him in a nursery once when I was working and he climbed a big high fence. Only four years old.

"He must have been unhappy if he ran way that much. Sometimes when I was having some difficulty with his father, I would go down to my mother's to get away from it. Bob would just run out on the street to go with me. He always wanted to go with me — although he liked his father.

"If I had my life to do over again . . . I don't think a broken home helps a child. But my brother said I shouldn't blame myself so

Increased Social Security Checks In Today's Mail

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The mailmen today delivered to 23 million Americans the first installment of a $3.7 billion increase in social security benefits.

Most March paychecks reflected a 13 per cent increase in payment for retirement, disability and benefits for widows and surviving children.

The green, computerized checks are the first showing Congressional approval last year of across-the-board benefit increases and a hike in the monthly minimum payment from $44 to $55.

The monthly benefit of a worker will be increased from $127 to $153. Most Americans started paying for the increased benefits through higher social security payroll taxes effective Jan. 1.

The new law went into effect Feb. 15 but checks were not due to arrive until tomorrow. Because there is no mail service on Sunday, the checks were being delivered today.

The paychecks will be about $1 smaller next month for 18 million persons 65 and over who are covered by a complete range of medicare program. The decrease will reflect additional medicare insurance premiums to help finance expanded medicare coverage provided by the bill.

NOTHING MUCH TO DO . . .

There's nothing much to do at Oceana Marin—nothing, that is, except enjoy magnificent views along a spectacular coastline, swim, surf, fish, dig for clams, oysters, and abalone, and go boating whenever you want.
There's nothing much for the kids to do either, except have fun on private-access beaches, play in the sandy coves, hike in the surrounding hills, swim, fish and surf.
If you insist on owning a homesite where there's so little to do, you might justify it ($6,000 up) on the basis of a fine investment; ocean-front values are always going up.

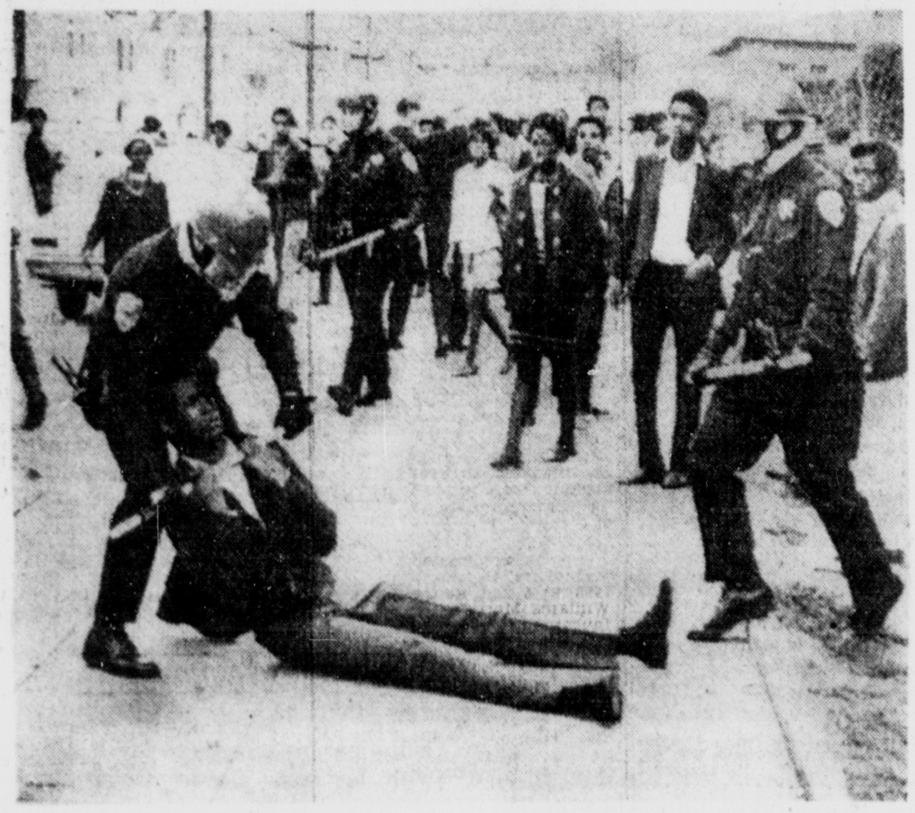
FLAREUP AT TEACHERLESS SCHOOL

A white student from strikebound Balboa High School flourishes a long knife while he confronts a Negro student on the street near the school. Police soon arrived to halt the episode without injury yesterday, but a number of students were arrested after breaking windows, tossing eggs and turned in false alarms. (See story on page 1.)



'THAT'S ALL, SON' — San Francisco's police tactical detail moves in on unruly Balboa High School students after most of the school's teachers went out on strike. Members of the striking Local 61, American Federation of Teachers claimed yesterday that the teachers who did go to their classrooms were "totally unable to maintain order."

Ambulance Firm Delays Cutoff

Novato Ambulance Co. will continue to provide emergency service in the Novato area until Tuesday, ambulance owner Jack Kinney announced today.

Kinney yesterday delcared he would end his emergency service on Sunday because the company is losing about $1,000 per month.

Assistant County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella said today he talked to Kinney, who agreed to continue providing emergency service until after he appears before the Marin County Board of Supervisors to officially inform the county that he can no longer provide the service.

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan will address the California Taxpayers Association Wednesday at the group's annual meeting in San Francisco's Fairmont Hotel, the governor's office announced yesterday.

Reagan's schedule for next week includes a speech at the 20th annual California and Pacific Southwest Recreation and Park Conference Monday in San Diego, his capitol news conference Tuesday and remarks to the Western College Association luncheon in Sacramento Thursday.

The governor and Mrs. Reagan will attend a California Wine Institute reception Tuesday night at Sacramento's Senator Hotel.

'Bonnie-Clyde' Killing

LA PORTE, Ind. (UPI)—A 20-year-old man and a 13-year-old girl—who said they were inspired by the movie, "Bonnie and Clyde" — were captured today as suspects in the gun slaying of two Michigan service station attendants.

The bullet-riddled bodies of the attendants, Gerald Gort, 17, and Jack McRoy, 45, Grand Rapids, were found today by a motorist.

Names of the suspects were not released, at the request of Kent County, Mich., authorities who said they wanted to question them first.

Amy Remarries

NEW YORK (UPI)—Etiquette queen Amy Vanderbilt and her fourth husband, corporation lawyer Curtis Bradbury Kellar, were sailing to a Caribbean honeymoon today after a quiet wedding at her century-old town house.

Miss Vanderbilt, 59, and Kellar, 51, were married yesterday in the private ceremony attended by six of the couple's eight children by previous marriages.

After the wedding, the couple and their guests boarded the Italian liner Leonardo da Vinci for a pre-sailing reception.

Birthless Bonus

NEW YORK (UPI)—A Manhattan woman suggested yesterday that the state pay a bonus for "not reproducing" to encourage family planning among persons of low income.

Mrs. Gustave Taubert, a childless woman in the middle income bracket, suggested the state pay $500 for each year during which women of childbearing age have no children. In order to qualify for the bonus the women would have to be married or have had a child and their income falls below the official poverty level of $3,300 for a family of four.

Spock Hits Draft

BOSTON (AP) — Dr. Benjamin Spock, seeking dismissal of a federal antidraft conspiracy indictment against him, has filed a motion challenging the constitutionality of U.S. draft laws.

Spock charged that the Universal Military Training and Service Act violates article one and the first, fifth, ninth and thirteenth amendments to the U.S. Constitution.

His Gaudy Lordship

LONDON (AP) — Even Carnaby Street was taken aback today by Lord Snowdon's latest fashion fancy—a vivid, striped suit that made him look like a regency dandy with accents from the era of Bonnie and Clyde.

For every designer who said "smashing," there was one to mutter "shocking."

Princess Margaret's 37-year-old husband wore a tight-waisted, knee-length brown frock coat with broad gangster-style white stripes running up throught a "highwayman's collar." Trousers, of course, matched. And under the coat was a green and orange-striped shirt.

Michelin Bared

PARIS (UPI)—A newspaper today broke the tight security surrounding the ratings in "Guide Michelin," that unquestioned evaluator of France's palaces of gastronomy, and the loss of stars brought sorrow to many kitchens.

The annual "Guide Michelin" was not supposed to be released for two more weeks.

The ratings of the famed guide are taken so seriously that the chef of a two-star restaurant committed suicide two years ago when his restaurant was downgraded to one star.

Some of the longest-faced chefs and maitres d'hotels today were around Lyon, which regards itself as the culinary capital of the world.

Romney Talk Disturbing To Reagan

SACRAMENTO (AP) —Gov. Reagan has cautioned Michigan Gov. George Romney against statements or actions that would split the Republican party again into warring camps.

Reagan said he regrets that Romney "appeared to be appealing to a faction within our party" in announcing his departure from the race for the GOP presidential nomination. It's time to "forget labels," he said.

Romney is identified with moderate Republicans and he declined to support the 1964 candidacy of Barry Goldwater against President Johnson. Reagan is considered a conservative and backed Goldwater.

Reagan also said yesterday he was puzzled by Romney's news conference "allusion to a man from California" when Romney said: "I have not ruled out the possibility of the support of other than one candidate."

WHO IS HE?

Romney was asked who he meant.

"Well, use your imagination," he said.

Newsmen at the scene, in Washington D. C., and Reagan aides interpreted the comment to mean Reagan, who supporters see him as a possible contender for the nomination in case Richard M. Nixon's campaign stumbles.

But later, Romney said he hadn't excluded any candidate.

Reagan's statement issued yesterday afternoon, not long after Romney's meeting with newsmen, said:

"I have been informed of Governor Romney's press conference. In light of the fact that I am not a candidate, I am unable to understand his allusion to a man from California.

'LESSON' CITED

"I regret also that in announcing his withdrawal as a candidate for president, Governor Romney appeared to be appealing to a faction within our party. I had hoped we had learned the lesson of 1964."

Reagan's office issued the statement while the governor was horseback riding on a Sierra foothills ranch 45 miles northeast of Sacramento.

Governor Appoints His First Regents

Haldeman, a Los Angeles executive, and W. Glenn Campbell, a Stanford University educator, today were Gov. Ronald Reagan's first appointees to the University of California Board of Regents.

Haldeman Campbell

Reagan yesterday named the two Republicans to succeed Einar O. Mohn, a labor union official who often opposed Reagan on university issues, and Laurence J. Kennedy Jr., a Redding Democrat.

Haldeman, previously an ex-officio member, was one of those voting to fire university president Clark Kerr at the first regents' meeting attended by Reagan last year.

Haldeman, 41, is vice president of J. Walter Thompson & Co., while Campbell, 43, is director of the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace at Stanford. The terms of Mohn and Kennedy expired.

Members of the policy-setting board of the state's nine-campus university system earn no salary but receive compensation for expenses and travel.

Haldeman, who has been with J. Walter Thompson & Co. for 18 years, was campaign manager for Richard Nixon in his unsuccessful bid for the California governorship in 1962. As president of the UCLA alumni association, he served as an ex-officio regent the last three years.

The new regent has been a member of the Coordinating Council for Higher Education, past chairman and member of the trustees of UCLA foundation and a board member and past president of the International Student Center. He earned a bachelor of science degree at UCLA.

Campbell has been director of the Hoover Institution since 1960. He received a bachelor of arts degree in economics and political science from the University of Western Ontario, London, Canada, and master's and doctor's degrees in economics from Harvard. He taught at Harvard from 1946 through 1951.

Campbell, a former research economist for the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, is a member of a number of economic and political associations and edited several publications including "Economics of Compulsory Health Insurance."

Jet Unveiling Set Tomorrow

MARIETTA, Ga. (UPI)—The Air Force today was to unveil the world's largest airplane, a four-fanjet transport about the size of a football field that can deliver several platoons of soldiers complete with tanks anywhere in the world within 24 hours.

Air Force Secretary Harold Brown is to be the principal speaker at ceremonies at the Lockheed-Georgia plant, where the huge C5A was constructed. A crowd of 30,000, including military brass and congressmen, is expected for the unveiling.

The C5A, scheduled to make its first test flight from Dobbins Air Force Base here in June, will greatly increase the United States' ability to deploy combat troops and equipment to trouble spots on short notice.

Gun Collector Dismissal Vetoed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter denied yesterday a motion to suppress evidence against William E. Thoresen III, charged with illegally transporting some 70 tons of arms and ammunition.

Thoresen's attorney had argued unsuccessfully that the search of Thoresen's San Francisco mansion last April was improper.

Nixon Forced To Turn Guns On Johnson

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon today headed for Wisconsin and the opening of a campaign to prove his voter appeal by outpolling President Johnson in that state's April 2 primary election.

Nixon, the only active Republican in the primaries, suggested yesterday that his chief rival, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, should either formally enter the primaries or stay out of the contest altogether.

JOHNSON TRAVELS

Nixon's campaign strategy was thrown off course by the surprise withdrawal of Gov. George Romney from the New Hampshire primary. Nixon had hoped to pile up impressive margins over other Republicans in this year's primaries so he could go into the GOP's August convention in Miami with a new winning image. He must shed the image he is a loser, built on his defeats in the 1960 presidential race and the 1962 California gubernatorial election.

Romney's abrupt departure and Rockefeller's continued refusal to formally enter the race has forced Nixon to shift gears and designate Johnson as his new target in the primaries.

'WILLING' FOR DRAFT

Rockefeller, while still avoiding a formal commitment, said yesterday he is "ready and willing" to accept the presidential nomination if drafted.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy carried his presidential ambitions back to New Hampshire today.

The Minnesota Democrat, trying to unseat President Johnson in the New Hampshire primary March 12, said in Washington yesterday there was a chance he would be able to pick up some of the independent votes.

New Parties May Elect Committees

Two new county central committees may be selected by voters in Marin's two new political parties — if enough registrants in the parties file for the June 4 primary.

Any voter registered in either the Peace and Freedom Party or the American Independent Party may circulate nomination papers for the committee seats.

The papers must be signed by registered voters in the appropriate supervisorial district, since committee members represent supervisorial districts. Each candidate's papers must be signed by not less than 20 nor more than 30 qualified voters, and must be returned to the county elections office by 5 p.m. on March 22.

The number of members in each party's county committee will not be calculated until Tuesday by the county elections office. The number is based on the local vote recorded by each party in the last gubernatorial election, but the state election code provides that the size of new parties' committees is the same as the Republican Party's.

If there is no contest for committee seats, the persons who file nomination papers will become the committee members and would appoint all the other members, according to John F. Musser Jr., deputy county clerk for elections.

much for everything that happened. Bob, even when he was a little boy, he always kept everything deep inside himself. Bob never was unkind to me."

Mrs. Smith went on talking quietly like that, while she waited for Robert, sipping a cup of coffee someone had given her. She said her mouth felt dry. She had a stroke a couple of years ago, she said and although she looked very attractive, there was a slight stiffness in the way she held herself.

She said that she was watching the "Truth or Consequences" televison program one evening last month in South San Gabriel when Robert Kale of the San Francisco Seven Steps Foundation called her long distance and said she had been chosen for an expense-paid trip to see her son.

Robert went to prison in 1954 for a Southern California robbery, was paroled in 1956, returned to prison two years later for drinking. He was paroled again in March, 1959, but stayed out only eight months before being returned for violating the condition of his release. His sentence has been re-fixed at the maximum, life, and he goes before the parole board again in May.

Mrs. Smith, now widowed from her second husband, had been sitting there in the San Quentin restaurant for some time today, when a short, stocky, rather middle-aged looking convict came striding in the side door, accompanied by a guard.

He was a dead ringer for Mrs. Smith, the same eyes, face, stocky build. His hair was crew cut. He rounded the wall in a brisk turn and Mrs. Smith, who had been talking so quietly, jumped up suddenly and her face broke into glad tears.

They were about the same height and they threw their arms around each other. "Oh Bob, bless your heart," said Mrs. Smith. "God bless your heart, I love you so much."

The photographers took pictures of that, and then made a couple more posed ones of Mrs. Smith and Robert. After that, the photographrs went away, and the Robert Chipp and his mother had a moment to look each other over quietly and begin their day's visit.

She was a little shy with him about her pale strawberry colored hair, as if she were worried that he might not like it.

"I saw a girl on the elevator, just a young girl, and her's was exactly the same color," she said. "Is it all right?"

Robert nodded that it looked fine. They said they planned to spend today and tomorrow just talking, before Mrs. Smith has to go back home to South San Gabriel.

Register Looted

Someone took $350 in cash and a $160 check from his cash register yesterday afternoon, Eugene Balinski of Marin Masonry of 750 Lincoln Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, told police. Bolinski was out in the yard of his shop at the time, he said.

'ON DRAG STRIP'

Judge Grounds Driver After 100 m.p.h Race

"If he likes to race his car, I'd rather have him do it on the drag strip than the highway."

That is the way Judge Hadden W. Roth of Marin Municipal Court explained his sentence this week of a Petaluma youth accused of speeding 100 miles per hour down Highway 101.

Judge Roth sentenced 18-year-old Daniel Ray Pallo to two days in jail, then suspended the sentence.

He took the youth's driver's license and told him he would be punished if caught driving anywhere but to and from work or on his favorite weekend drag-strip.

Officer Richard Harkness of the California Highway Patrol testified that he clocked Pallo at 100 miles per on the highway south of Novato.

Impossible, said the youth. He claimed his 1967 Pontiac GTO is modified for drag race sprints. A sustained speed of 100 miles per hour would burn out the rear end, he told the judge.

Judge Roth decided the true speed was probably somewhere in between 100 miles per hour and the 75 miles per hour claimed by Pallo.

"I usually give jail sentences if they're going that fast," he said, referring to the 100-mile-per-hour claim.

STRIKE

School Supt. Robert E. Jenkins and later appointed the two mediators, businessman Vernon Kaufman, and Dr. Lloyd Luckman, an associate dean at the University of San Francisco.

Picketing was concentrated yesterday at the city's 10 senior high schools, 15 junior highs and at the San Francisco City College. The city's 130 schools have an enrollment of 92,000.

Student rowdyism was most prevalent at Baboa High School, where 72 of the 110 teachers were on strike. As teachers carried signs outside reading "Teachers on Strike for Better Schools," bands of students roamed the corridors inside. The disturbance died out after police arrived and arrests were made.

Hopes dimmed over the weekend for settlement of at least two other teacher strikes, as a compromise county level collective bargaining proposal to end the Florida walkout was scrapped and Pittsburgh teachers threatened all-out picketing Monday in defiance of a court ban.

The strike by a third of the state's 60,000 teachers has kept more than a half-million of Florida's 1.3 million students out of classes.

Gov. Claude Kirk called the bargaining proposal, backed by the Florida Education Association, a "complete sell-out."

In Pittsburgh, a third of the steel city's 3,000 teachers were off the job yesterday. The city's 88 elementary schools remained open but junior and senior high schools were closed at least until next Tuesday.

Tam Trustees Eye Bond Ballot

Setting of a recommended $9,900,500 bond issue for the June 4 primary election is scheduled for consideration by the Tamalpais High School District Board at its 8 p.m. meeting Monday in district headquarters at Redwood High School.

A citizens' bond proposal committee has proposed that the money, plus $1 million from special reserve funds, be used for construction of high schools at San Geronimo and Tiburon, and for additions at Redwood, Tamalpais, and Sir Francis Drake high schools.

The district's 1968-69 salary program is scheduled for consideration at Monday's meeting.

Nine Obtain Papers For Primary Ballot

Nine persons have taken out nomination papers from the county elections department for the June 4 special district and political central committee elections.

Lee, First District; Henry J. Broderick, Third District; Esther A. Schimbor, Fifth District; for Democratic Central Committee, Joseph D. Dahlman, First District; Herbert G. Hawkins, Second District; Lee V. Holman, Third District, and Gordon W. Pusser, Fourth District.

general relief, and two on aid to needy children.

The charge of possession does not automatically rule out eligibility, Sanford explained. He said case workers work with recipients to try to get them back to work and off the relief rolls, just as those who have a drinking problem.

Even if those charged with possession are sentenced to jail, the family can qualify for public assistance. "Quite often, the jailing of the head of the family necessitates aid to the family," Sanford said.

Sanford said the raids led to the arrest of three fathers sought for failing to support their families. "Now at least, we'll be able to talk to them about helping to support their families," he said.

Was public assistance money used to buy narcotics?

Sanford said this would be true is a recipient were not selling narcotics and using this money to buy more.

There is no ironclad way to prevent a welfare recipient from buying marijuana, no more than they can be prevented from buying cigarettes or liquor, except where families are issued county food vouchers, he explained.

In cases where families are not able to manage their money properly, county vouchers are issued instead of cash so that only needed groceries can be purchased. But in most cases, cash is given instead of vouchers because the aim of public assistance is to give temporary relief until families can get back on their feet. Responsibility in money management is an important part of becoming self-sufficient, Sanford said.

Bay Region Constitution Is Proposed

OAKLAND (AP)— The draft of a proposed constitution for regional government for nine Bay Area counties was presented yesterday to the legislature's Joint Committee on Bay Area Regional Organization by Alameda County Supervisor Joseph P. Bort of Berkeley.

It was the first detailed proposal received by the committee, which will hold its eighth hearing in San Francisco next Friday.

Bort's proposal would have a regional governing board composed of supervisors from the existing nine counties. The smallest would have two representatives, and the most populous, Alameda, would have seven members.

His plan calls for a regional mayor, directly elected by the people, who would administer the regional government, provide leadership and speak for regional government as a whole.

Clerk-Grocer Split Solved

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Retail Clerks Union Local 684 reached agreement last night with operators of major supermarkets in San Francisco and northern San Mateo County, ending a strike-lockout which began Thursday.

A joint announcement by the union and Food Employers Labor Relations Association said all stores would be open today.

The settlement, spokesmen said, embodies wage increases and improved fringe benefits already established in agreement with the West Bay Association of Food Industries and other independent food retailers.

The union last Sunday approved agreements with the 300 stores for an increase of 58 cents an hour over three years. The current pay scale is $3.435 per hour.

Marin County Retail Clerks Local 1119 has authorized a strike against chain markets in Marin, but has announced it wishes to bargain on the basis of terms of a settlement in San Francisco.

Vietnamese paratroopers reported they killed 203 Communists in the fighting and described their own casualties as light.

In the northwest corner of the country, North Vietnamese troops were reported steadily tightening the ring around the U.S. Marine bastion of Khe Sanh where Allied defenders yesterday beat back a charging attack by 500 Communist troops.

In other developments:

At two points along the Vietnamese coast, U.S. Navy salvage crews recovered thousands of individual weapons and hundreds of cases of ammunition from two of three Communist trawlers destroyed yesterday.

A 230-truck convoy carrying 989 tons of food and clothing arrived today at the battle-wracked former Imperial capital of Hue. In the first such run attempted since the Communist New Year's offensive, the convoy made the 40-mile trip from Da Nang without incident.

Air raids by U.S. Navy fighter bombers hit both the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi and its chief seaport, Haiphong, yesterday.

Spending Cure For Riots Hit By Southerners

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Appropriations Committee says programs recommended by the President's Commission on Civil Disorders could cost hundreds of billions of dollars and "this is wholly unrealistic."

The commission's report, added Rep. George H. Mahon, D-Tex., "may raise hopes and expectations which could do more harm than good." He contended it is unsound to suggest that racial prejudice can be cured by spending huge sums of money.

His comments yesterday joined a flow of criticism—most of it from Southern congressmen—directed at the findings of the group that spent seven months investigating last year's riots. Other congressmen praised the report.

"Propaganda ad nauseam," declared Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Hopelessly Shy Should Stay Far, Far Away From Tough-Guy

DEAR HELEN:

This is for Hopelessly Shy who says she has a big crush on a tough-guy swinger. Let me tell you, girlie, stay far, far away from him!

I know what it's like to fall hard for a guy like that. But I wasn't as lucky as you: he noticed me.

Brucie was a regular drunk and jail bird at 18. The more trouble he got into, the greater he seemed to me. I though I loved him. I knew I could reform him. Stupid me!

My parents wouldn't let me date him so I sneaked out. I thought I was in command of the situation because I could control those long ,long parking sessions. But all the kids at school knew I was dating Bruce, and they assumed I was his kind. I got a very bad reputation which lots of kids haven't forgotten, even after a year.

Brue finally found out my no meant business, so he dropped me flat on my face, thank goodness. My folks never knew. I'll never fool them again. It takes away too much of your self-respect.

It still hurts when I remember I was such a fool, and I'm still working to retain by lost reputation.

Don't ever get mixed up with a toughie if you aren't his kind. Or you soon will be —OLDER AND WISER

DEAR HELEN:

I had to write to Wants to Love Him.

Three years ago I met a wonderful boy. We fell for each other hard. It was all thrills and chills for almost a year. Then suddenly it died.

Although I still liked him a lot, all the excitement was gone and I wondered if maybe I should break off. So I went with other guys that summer, and slowly it dawned on me that I really loved my boyfriend. It was just a different stage of love: it had gone from the mad, mad crush to the second, quite kind of real, real love.

His kisses don't send thrills up my spine any more, but they convey a very strong feeling of deep affection. He's the kindest, most considerate and most wonderful person in the world. But it took going out with other boys to make me realize it. Now I know he's the one I want to spend the rest of my life making happy.

I hope WLTH tests her love as I did. Her boyfriend sounds too good to loose!—LEARNED IN TIME

DEAR HELEN:

This is in answer to Mr. K, the teacher who says it's all right to punish note-passers by reading the notes out loud to the class. Would you, Mr. K, like us to read out loud the notes you sent to the cute teacher down the hall?—ANTI

DEAR HELEN:

We are two high school students, and we think Mr. K's technique of reading notes out loud is very effective. Aany punishment that shames the student works better than a gentle slap on the wrist. That includes making him stand in the corner, or wear the gum he chews on his nose. When people laugh at him, he won't do it again. You don't know much about classrooms, Mrs. Bottel, if you don't think humiliation works. If a student doesn't have respect for the teacher, why should the teacher have any respect for the student?—TWO GOOD STUDENTS

DEAR HELEN:

When a teacher reads a note out loud to the class it's an invasion of privacy, and he's just an exhibitionist, wanting to get laughs at the expense of a miserable student. Sometimes those notes are very private.

Our favorite teacher tells us we can talk quietly in class during study periods, if we don't pass notes. We don't.—H.E.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Boating Up The Amazon

By MOLLY MARIN

A trip in a small boat 50 miles up the Amazon River was one of the highlights of their tour of South America for the Kent O. Seymours of Mill Valley, the William Marcuses of Kent Woodlands, and Mr. Marcus' brother and sister-in-law, Col. and Mrs. Morris Marcus of San Francisco.

They left on Dec. 28, making most of the trip by plane except for boat and automobile within certain countries. After traveling up the Amazon they stopped at Iquitos and went by dugout canoe into the jungle to a camp where they stayed two days. Mrs. Seymour said it was just like what one reads about and can scarcely believe with many varieties of fauna and flora.

Other interesting places for them were Machu Picchu in the 12,000 to 14,000 foot high mountains of Peru and the Ignaso Falls of Chile Argentina and Paraguy. The falls stretch three miles across the crest, Mrs. Seymour said, and are higher than Niagara, but the jungle water is muddy.

Major reason for the trip was the two weeks' of fishing for the men in the streams in the Argentine and Chilean lake district, where they caught many trout, most weighing three pounds.

The group also visited all the major cities in South America. Mrs. Seymour said she was most impressed with Buenos Aires, the only one which was a sophisticated international city with opera, race courses, smart shops and a theater complex, and with Rio de Janeiro because of its beauty.

HISTORY'S FIRST White House fashion show had it all—fancy clothes, beautiful models and a gilded setting—and the President of the United States. He popped in briefly to greet wives of the nation's governors, guests, at the Mrs. Johnson's fashion first, and to joke:

"With so many governors in town, I didn't want to leave the White House too long."

The governors' spouses oohed and aahed at the half-hour array of finery, but were cool to the miniskirts displayed. They saved their biggest applause for long evening dresses emphasizing the feminine look.

A white-carpeted, 600-foot runway in the elegant State Dining Room was the showcase for the offerings of 25 American designers during the salute to the nation's garment industry and the "Discover America" program.

HONORED SUNDAY at a surprise reception on the occasion of their 30th wedding anniversary were Mr. and Mrs. Claude Witzel of Indian Valley Road, Novato.

The surprise party was planned by their daughter Valerie and their two sons and their wives, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Witzel and Mr. and Mrs. Terry Witzel.

Mrs. Harry Clausing made floral arrangements for the table and Mrs. Charles Johnson designed a copy of a bride and bridegroom for the buffet table.

The couple were presented silver casseroles by the family and friends attending, Messrs. and Mesdames Richard Brigham of Menlo Park, Al Paulsen of Atherton, Frederick Witzel of Los Altos Hills, Everett Witzel of Belvedere, James Barnes of Hood, William Albrecht of San Carlos and Marett Boisevain, Charles Johnson, Gordon Leathers, Ralph Giovaniello, William J. J. Smith, Harry Clausing, Louis Dorschkind, Jack Sparrow, William Jonas, Ed Kingsland, Victor Myers, all of Novato, and George Geramoni of Ross and Miss Shelley Brigham of Menlo Park.

OF INTEREST to friends in Marin is the birth of a son to Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Capell Jr. The little boy, named Shawn Michael, was born in San Jose Hospital Feb. 19. He is the first child of Jeff and the former Virginia Huntsberger. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Capell of Belvedere and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Huntsberger of Glendale.

Phillip Ameen Sherman claimed Cynthia Sayles as his bride Feb. 25 at the First Presbyterian Church in San Rafael.

Cynthia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy G. Sayles of San Rafael. She attended San Rafael High School and the College of Marin.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Sherman of Los Altos. He attended Homestead High School and Foothill Callege.

The bride's attendants were Lynn Beckstrom of San Rafael, maid of honor, Gail Garms of San Rafael and the groom's sister, Pat, of Los Altos, bridesmaids.

Alan Castle of Los Altos was best man. Pat Osborne of Los Altos, the groom's brother, Bob, and the bride's brother, Brad, ushered.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. Hazel Elliot of Corte Madera and Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Sayles of San Francisco.

Circular Ruffles Are Feminine, Can Be Cut Without A Pattern

By EUNICE FARMER

Ruffles, ruffles, everywhere, but how do I make them without a pattern? I would like to know if there is some way to cut these ruffles so I may apply them to the edges of a front band or cuffs of blouses. The ones I have seen looks like they have been cut on the bias. Also, how would I finish the cut edges?

MRS. C.P.

DEAR MRS. C.P.:

The circular ruffles which really make a beautiful, soft finish for that feminine look can be cut without a pattern. Cut about a 12 inch square of organcy or silk organza or another fabric. Round off three of the corners. At the fourth corner, begin cutting about a two inch wide strip following the outside edge. Continue in a spiral shape to the center.

To finish the cut edges, you may use a small rolled hem with the hemming foot on your machine, or if you have one of the new zigzag machines, you may use a decorative stitch for a lovely effect. This decorative stitch may also be done in a contrasting color thread.

You may wish to bind the edges with narrow bias binding in a contrasting color. Actually, there are many ways of finishing. This is where you must let your imagination guide you.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

Mrs. Bill Gosnell, Charlotte, N.C. is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her following suggestion.

"I have always enjoyed using saddle stitching on my clothes but had trouble making the stitches the same length until I came across this idea.

"Set your machine on the longest stitch and sew a line where you want the saddle stitching to be. This serves as a guide line. Now take yarn, embroidery thread, or whatever you wish to use, and simply follow your guide line by starting at one end of the machine stitching and sew on top of two machine stitches and skip one. You can make it whatever length you desire.

"This is much faster and leaves no guess work. A contrasting thread gives a very pretty braid effect."

DEAR EUNICE FARMER,

I am making a suit of bonded fabric and have had the unfortunate experience of pressing with too hot an iron. I now have a large scorch mark on the right front of my jacket. I have tried every home remedy I know and wonder if you could suggest anything further.

MRS. F.R

DEAR MRS. F.R.,

Sorry, but I can't help you this time. First of all, the bonded fabric does not have the same amount of yarn per yard that you would find on unbonded fabric.

Also, the fabric that is used for the bonding would not withstand some of the remedies that tand some of the remedies that are familiar.

I am afraid you will have to purchase more fabric and make another front. I have tried to stress many times the importance of not using a very hot iron on wool. Here is one basic rule: NEVER press any fabric from the right side.

I am trying to get an overall picture of your home sewing. Would you please drop me a note or a card and tell me how many garments you have made this year and just what garments these were.

I am also interested in hearing from the teen-agers, who are rapidly becoming the largest single age group of home sewers.

From these notes, I can easily tell what subjects to discuss in this column. I am trying in limited space to reach out and help as many of you as possible.

It would also help if you would let me know what your particular difficulties are so that perhaps I may plan more leaflets for you on specific subjects. I am truly eager to hear from all of you.

CASTING THE SEEDS TO THE WINDS

Up on the hillside on Wolfback ridge, west of Waldo Grade, women from the Sausalito Woman's Club scatter wildflower seeds in hopes of brightening the Marin hills for the next few years. It was a hazardous scramble but the women drove and then climbed Thursday to do their seeding for the second year on Southern Marin hills. Twelve varieties of native California wildflowers, including the golden poppy, were scattered by members of three of the club's sections.

Interested In Family Origin?

By JOAN LISETOR

Are you a product of the great European melting pot who sailed to America in waves of immigration? Did your ancestors cross Siberia to the free city of Hong Kong? Were they original Americans here when Columbus landed? Is your heritage Mexican, Chinese? Who are you historically speaking?

You may find the answers to these and many more questions about yourself, your neighbors or famous Americans by visiting the Genealogical and Heraldry Exhibit at the San Rafael Public Library.

The exhibit which runs through the end of March was prepared by librarian Lucile Le Count of San Rafael.

"Without the help of many people and the California Historical Society, Adolph Sutro Library and the Marin and San Francisco Historical societies," Mrs. Le Count stated, "the exhibit would not have been possible."

GREAT WAVES of interest in genealogy have always been stimulated during war time. Most genealogy charts are traced to military men or royal families. The charts may vary from elaborate tree designs to simple home made charts, Mrs. Le Count explained.

Examples of each type are on display in the library. The most elaborate is the Schmidt family of San Rafael. This colorful lithograph traces the family from 1703 to 1918.

Another Marin family tree is a hand designed and made graph which interwinds three Marin families, the Beales, the Perrys and Worns, all descendants of James Ross, who founded Ross township in 1849. It was prepared in 1966 by descendant George Austin Worn.

The third Marin family is Mrs. Le Count's own genealogy chart. She is the former Lucile Irma Hackett and traces her ancestry most notably to John Alden and Priscilla.

FAMOUS AMERICAN families are traced through other charts on exhibit, the most famous being George Washington. There is a simple homemade chart of the poet John Greenleaf Whittier, and an elaborate one of unknown Levi Tenney, a New York Justice of the Peace, who traces his ancestry back to Charlemagne.

In the early twentieth century the fashion was to trace one's ancestry to royalty. Gov. Gurdon Saltonstall of Massachusetts in 1909 had his family traced not only to European royal families, but also, through the Divine Right of Kings, to Jesus Christ and then direcly to God. However, a note beneath the Saltonstall family tree suggest there may be some discrepancy since there are 10 generations missing.

IF YOU HAVE an interest in tracing your family, the library is distributing "do-it-yourself" genealogical charts. Many books on the subject are available in the San Rafael Public Lbirary as well as books lent during the exhibit by the Sutro Library on the seven catagories of general research needed to complete a family tree. These catagories are family, vital records, local, ethnic or nationality, religious, military and guides.

DRAMA REVIEW

Novatans Succeed With 'Mr. Roberts'

By THERON A. NEWELL

One of the best productions of the Novato Community Players, "Mr. Roberts," held the attention of the audience from the beginning to the end last night at the Novato Community House.

It will be presented again today at 8:30 p.m. and the same time next Friday and Saturday.

Much of the credit must go to Vincent McGovern, director, who rehearsed the large cast until the play came across without any awkward pauses of a first night production. It was a fast and smooth running production throughout.

James Vanderbeets, who played the role of Lt. (Jg) Douglas Roberts, was outstanding in his role as friend and leader of the crew. Ralph White played the role of the captain with such ability that the audience hated his every appearance. Equally good was Michael Jones as the not-too-bright Ensign Pulver.

CLASH IS GOOD

The clash of characters was especially good between the captain and Mr. Roberts when Roberts gave personal concessions to get the crew shore leave.

The results of that shore leave were hilarious. The big cast that took part in all of the action never let a moment drag by.

Scenes such as the fight between the sailors on the ship were done with more realism than most movie and television productions.

LONE WOMAN

Paul Terry as Doc, and Larry Selna as Dolan also gave fine performances. Elaine Jacob as Lt. Ann Girard, the only woman in the cast, does not project well, however.

Much credit must be given to the off-stage crew that changed the many scenes as quickly as they did, considering the limited facilities of the Community House. The scene in which Ensign Pulver goes from full dress uniform to a tattered uniform covered with soapsuds took one minute and 34 seconds off stage.

The sound crew should also be applauded. The sets were well designed and authentic.

Marin County Board of Education will consider salary raises Monday for special education teachers and administrator.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. at the schools data processing center, 122 Paul Street, Northgate Industrial Park, San Rafael.

The administrative services committee has worked out a salary schedule for special education instructors calling for $7,315 annually at the training level for a teacher with a bachelor of arts degree, to a top of $14,089 for a teacher with a doctor's or master's degree.

Two pay plans will be presented for administrators. They would make either $19,000 or $19,500 the top salary for assistant superintendent, $18,000 or $18,500 the top for a director, op for a coordinator and $15,500 or $16,500 top for a consultant.

Linda J. Merrill of 142 Bungalow Street, San Rafael, complained to Marin Sheriff's deputies Wednesday that someone stole jewelry worth $280 and $7 cash from her car parked at the end of Brighton Avenue in Bolinas between 4:30 and 5 p.m. that day.

Vietnam Policy Debate Likely In Mill Valley

A full-scale debate on the Vietnam war may develop when the Mill Valley City Council meets at 8 p.m. Monday in the council chamber.

The council may go on record, as asked by Councilman Rodric L. Robinson two weeks ago, asking President Johnson to formulate a policy of peace in Vietnam and to start an orderly withdrawal of our troops.

Or the council may put Robinson's proposal on the April 9 city election ballot. The city attorney has drawn up a resolution in two forms for the council to consider Monday.

The Vietnam proposal has already stirred Mill Valley. American Legion Post 284 sent the council a letter opposing any council position on Vietnam. "Our city officials were elected to represent the citizens on local matters, not to attempt to speak for the community on matters of high controversy and grave national concern," the Legion wrote.

The Vietnam question may affect the city council election as well by forcing candidates to take sides. One candidate, Jerome C. Hauke, is on record against a position statement by the council and for putting the proposition on the ballot. As for his own position on the war, "I stand behind the President," Hauke said.

On Dean's List

Three Marin students have been named to the dean's list for the first semester at Harvey Mudd College, Claremont. They are: Charles R. Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Scott of Ross; Howard D. Cohen, son of Col. and Mrs. Chester Cohen of 374 Margarita Drive, San Rafael, and Stephen P. Schultz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald P. Schultz of 69 Foothill Road, San Anselmo.

MARINE COMES HOME

Colonel Thinks War Will 'Degenerate'

The burr-cut former commander of the 5th Marine Regiment in Vietnam believes the war will "degenerate" to a point at which the Communists will be compelled to discuss peace.

Col. K. J. Houghton did not speculate as to when the war would end, but said the Communists had suffered immeasurable losses during the recent offensive and that "talk would be to their benefit."

He said 23,000 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese had died since the Tet period. American deaths totaled 1,013 in the past two weeks, according to the U.S. Command in Saigon.

VISIT PARENTS

Houghton, who returned from Saigon Wednesday, is in Marin County visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orvelle Houghton of 62 Forbes Avenue, San Rafael.

The much-decorated, 47-year-old Marine did not envision a Communist surrender and did not think it was needed. He said America has the firepower to force peace talks.

SILVER STAR

Houghton, reared in San Francisco but now living in Arlington, Va., was wounded twice during his 13 months in Vietnam. He received the Silver Star and the Navy Cross.

His command of the regiment, a part of the 2nd Marine Division, was centered 12 miles south of Da Nang and Houghton said this was a vital position for the Allies to hold because it is "astride a normal invasion route."

U.S. morale, Houghton said, is high — so high, he added, that it is a problem restraining American troops from engaging the enemy when such an assault might trap U.S. soldiers.

"It's difficult holding them back when they are subjected to constant rocket and artillery fire," Houghton said.

Houghton, who has been a Marine 26 years and fought in Korea, and in the Pacific during World War II, will go to Washington for a new assignment. Home in Virginia are his wife, Betty Ann, and four children.

Director Quits Marin Easter Seals Society

Peggy Russo, executive director of the Easter Seals Society of Marin County, has resigned to take a consultant post with the state Department of Public Health.

Mrs. Russo's resignation, announced at the society's meeting Wednesday, is effective April 1, exactly four years after she joined the society staff.

She plans to continue living in Mill Valley, commuting to the health department offices in Berkeley, where she will participate in a federally funded vaccination program aimed at raising the statewide level of immunity against mumps.

Mrs. Russo said she will continue to assist the current Easter Seals drive which ends April 14.

Underground Plans

Belvedere City Council will consider Monday recommendations from the planning commission on establishing priority streets for undergrounding utilites and on a plan to modernize street lights. The council meets at 8 p.m. in the Community Center.

Harbor Point Feud Again Before County Planners

A feud between residents of Harbor Point subdivision in Strawberry and developer Stanley W. Taylor of San Francisco will be resumed in a hearing before the Marin County Planning Commission Monday at 9 a.m. in the Civic Center.

Last August, Taylor won a lot split at 369 and 371 East Strawberry Drive. Residents appealed to Marin Superior Court and won another hearing before the Marin County Planning Commission.

The Novato Trap Club will ask for renewal of a use permit so that a trap and skeet-shooting club can be set up at Mira Monte, on the east side of Highway 101 between San Antonio Creek and the railroad tracks.

Tom E. Nowell Jr., who was granted a service station under Richardson Bay Bridge, at Bolinas and Parepa streets, will bring in development plans that include a motel and coffee shop.

Other items on the agenda include a design review of Kenneth Niles' plans for a Seven-Eleven store on the corner of Shoreline Highway and Laurel Street, Tamalpais Valley, and approval of conditions to be attached to a 200-unit mobile home park on Bel Marin Keys Boulevard at Ignacio.

Private Sanitary System On Agenda

Request by the S and L subdivision in the 5700 block of Paradise Drive for annual renewal of a permit to operate its own sanitary system is scheduled for consideration by the Corte Madera Sanitary District Baord at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Also to be considered is request by the subdivision, which involves about eight acres, that the district consider absorbing the private system into its district operation. The board meets at 300 Tamalpais Drive.

Miller Avenue Street Lighting On Agenda

A street lighting plan for Miller Avenue will be discussed when the Mill Valley Architectural Advisory Committee meets at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the city council chamber.

At its last meeting, the committee rejected the plan proposed by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. and said it would produce its own plan more compatible with Mill Valley.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Interspecies Comparison Hints Man Could Live Two Centuries

How long can man live?

There is much speculation on this question and some estimate 200 years. This calculation is based on comparative biological studies demonstrating that animals live eight times as long as their period of growth.

If man reaches maturity at age 25, his life span could be 200 or, at age 20, 160.

VAN DELLEN

MAN MIGHT attain the age of 110 if there were no automobile accidents, viruses were controlled, and hardening of the arteries could be delayed. Problems such as air and water pollution, food shortages, over-population, and violence also would have to be solved.

Today, relatively few people reach the 100 mark. Fantastic stories about longevity beyond this are difficult to substantiate. Most of the individuals come from tranquil, remote villages where there are no birth certificates.

ACCORDING to Dr. Louis I. Dublin, author of "Factbook on Man" (The MacMilliam Company, New York), an English actuary searched through insurance and annuity records and found only 30 acceptable centenarians among 800,000 persons. There is one authenticated record of a Canadian who lived 113 years and 124 days.

Books with catchy titles such as "How to Live to Be 100 or 180" and "How to Stay Young All Your Life" approach longevity problems in various ways.

SOME stress diet and the need for specific food elements. Others recommend mind power, hormones, physical fitness, exercises and emotional control. Still other concentrate on a avoidance program involving tobacco, alcohol, drugs, stimulants, synthetic vitamins, white sugar, and enriched foods.

Quacks tout rejuvenating serums.

In the United States, the average length of life in 1960 was 69.7 years. At the turn of the century it was 49.2. Prior to World War II, the average life span for the world was estimated to be 35, but we can assume it is higher now.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

COLOR OF URINE

V. V. O. writes? Does colorless urine mean anything?

REPLY

Yes, provided it is like this at all times. Color (or lack of it) is not so important as the contents of the urine and its specific gravity. In general, the more dilute and clear urine is, the less color it has, and this is normal after consuming large amounts of fluids. One of the main functions of the kidneys is to elminate waste products, hence the urine should be more concentrated (higher specific gravity) and of a deeper color.

STROKE DURATION

Mrs. H. writes: After a little stroke, how long should confusion and nausea last?

REPLY

Less than 48 hours, as a rule. When symptoms persist other causes must be considered, such as disturbance of the balancing mechanism as in Meniere's syndrome.

TEARS FROM ONE EYE

Mrs. W. E. writes: While watching a tearjerker on television, I started to cry, but tears came from only one eye. Why was this?

REPLY

LBJ CHECKS ON APOLLO

Richard Johnston (left), official at the Manned Space Center in Houston, briefs President Lyndon B. Johnson as suit technician John Mays demonstrates the Apollo spacesuit and tools designed for use on the moon. "You had better be on schedule," Johnson yesterday told space chief James Webb, "and you'd better be on price, too." LBJ briefly visited the center while on a barnstorming tour in the South. BART Delays On Contracts; New Tax Plea Snagged

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Bay Area Rapid Transit District directors deferred action on eight contracts Thursday when efforts to gather state support for new taxes bogged down in Sacramento.

The deepened financial woes left the immediate future of the 75-mile network in a "confused situation," according to BART General Manager B.R. Stokes.

A motion by Director H. D. Lange of Oakland led to postponement of the awarding of $5.5 million in construction contracts in central Contra Costa and southern Alameda counties. Also deferred as the advertising for bids for five other contracts estimated to total $5.5 million to $7 million.

The plight developed when Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, ran into opposition to his bill to increase Bay Area auto taxes during a caucus of assemblymen and senators in Sacramento.

Films Canceled

Last two films in the foreign film festival of Marin Center, United Jewish Community Centers, have been canceled, according to officials of the center. They had been scheduled for March 10 and 31.

Paintings At Church

Drawings, watercolors and oil paintings by Marin artist Dorris Morrison will be displayed at the Unitarian Church of Marin, San Rafael, during March.

Burglary Charge Heard By Pair

Two San Francisco men were charged in Marin Municipal Court yesterday with joining an Illinois man in burgling the house of William Graning and Gladys Fleming at 246 Bayview Avenye, Belvedere, Aug. 15.

Joaquin R. Martinez and Allan H. Ludviksen, both 23, were arraigned and told to return to court Friday for entry of pleas.

Richard Lawrence Holstrom, 21, of Illinois, has denied the charge and is awaiting a preliminary hearing scheduled for March 11.

Employees' Parley Bill Introduced

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation based on a Marin County ordinance outlining public employees' rights to organize and setting procedures for collective bargaining has been introduced by Assemblyman Mike Cullen, D-Long Beach.

The Marin ordinance was approved Jan. 9 by county supervisors and provides that mediation or arbitration may be sought by mutual consent.

Cullen's bill would require that employees ballot in secret to select representatives to bargain for them, and would establish a California public employment relations board appointed by the State Personnel Board.

Cullen said the bill followed testimony on the rising rate of public work stoppages in California. He stressed that the bill "is not intended to be labor-oriented, "but was designed to "provide some departure point for fruitful mutual negotiations."

It would not apply to governmental agencies which have their own mutual negotiation procedure.

Injuries Minor In Auto Crash

A Lake County woman suffered minor injuries Thursday in a two-car traffic accident in Inverness.

Barbara A. Convirs, 58, of Nice, told California Highway patrolmen she would see her own physician for neck pains.

Her westbound car on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard was turning left at Balboa Avenue when it was struck in the rear by one driven by Joann Piazza, 29, of Point Reyes Station, at 10:55 a.m., according to patrolmen.

Hub Chamber Queries Drake Representation

The San Anselmo Chamber of Commerce board will ask the Marin County Grand Jury to investigate why the Sir Francis Drake High School attendance area has no representation on the Marin County Committee on School District Organization.

The chamber's decision came Thursday at the urging of Mary Olive, of 7 Agatha Court, San Anselmo, who has a child attending Isabel Cook School.

Mrs. Olive said the 11-member committee, whose function is to evaluate the needs and desires of various school districts regarding reorganization, should have a Drake area representative because it has about 5,500 students.

She said she is seeking signatures of Drake area residents supporting the request, and that if Drake representatives cannot get on the committee, then her group asks that the committee be placed under the authority of the Marin County Board of Education.

Mrs. Olive said the taxpayers from the Drake area have twice voted for unification of the county high schools, but the committee hasn't reflected this feeling, and there is no Drake area representative on the committee to speak for that feeling.

William A. Trewhella, secretary-manager of the chamber, said the board will ask the grand jury to look into the situation and "see if anything can be done about it."

The committee is elected to four-year terms by a group composed of one trustee representative from each school district. If a vacancy occurs before expiration of a term, the vacancy is filled by appointment by the board after nominations are called for. By law, there must be at least one committee member from each county supervisorial district. At present there are two from the first district, four from the second, two from the third, two from the fourth and one from the fifth district.

The Drake area lies within the second supervisorial district, but Mrs. Olive said there is no Drake area representation.

The 11 members include five residing in the Tamalpais High School district. A member, Mrs. J. W. Rakow of Ross, however, confirmed yesterday that at present none are from the Drake attendance area.

The other four besides Mrs. Rakow who are from the Tamalpais district are Jack Mengel, Corte Madera; J. R. B. Ellis, Kentfield; Dr. Walter Way, Ross, and Galen Williams, Mill Valley.

Remaining members are Mrs. Watson M. Conner, chairman, San Rafael; Mrs. Rulon E. Brown, San Rafael; Roy Parks, Tomales; David D. Ring, Tiburon, William E. Linn, Ignacio, and A. F. Marcelli, San Rafael.

State Shares Out $11 Million To Marin's Schools

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The state Department of Education has announced the first principal apportionment for the support of public schools in California of $1,223,507,664, including $11,015,444 for schools in Marin County.

For the county districts, this included $6,974,192 for elementary schools, $2,679,015 for high schools and $1,047,638 for junior colleges.

The apportionment also includes funds for the county school service fund.

Actually, school districts received their first money in the 1967-68 year last July and have been receiving money each month since then. This first principal apportionment primarily is the first computation of how much money each district is entitled to, if their enrollment remains at the same level.

In June, the second principal apportionment will reflect enrollment changes.

The total of the statewide apportionment is about $60 million more than had been anticipated when the major school finance bill was enacted last yeat.

City Councilmen To Discuss Fees

Discussion of fees charged by various departments in the city of San Rafael will take place at a meeting of the city council Monday at 8 p.m. in the city hall.

Councilmen will discuss whether fees cover expenses of such matters as re-zoning applications.

The Lenten Season Has Undergone Many Changes

By LOUIS CASSELS
U.P. International

Christian observance of the Lenten season, which began this week and will continue until Easter Sunday, April 14, has undergone great changes over the years.

Lent originated in the 3rd Century A. D. as an imitation of Christ, who spent 40 days fasting in the desert.

Fasting may mean going without food entirely, or it may mean eating sparingly and abstaining from certain types of food.

Practices varied widely over Christendom until the 7th Century, when Pope St. Gregory the Great laid down a uniform rule. He enjoined Christians to eat only one meal a day during Lent and to abstain, even at that meal, from "flesh meat and all things that come from flesh, such as milk, cheese, eggs."

This rule remained in effect for two centuries. In the 9th Century, the Church modified the rigors of the fast for the benefit of laborers who found it difficult to keep working on one meal a day.

The new rule called for a main meal at noon, followed by a light snack (usually bread and water, or bread and wine) in the evening.

A thousand years passed before the next major modification of Lenten fasting. Beginning in the 19th Century, the Catholic Church permitted a light breakfast in addition to the noonday meal and evening snack. Meat continued to be banned, but milk, eggs and cheese were permitted.

The biggest change of all came two years ago, when Pope Paul VI issued a new "Apostolic Constitution on Fast and Abstinence." It requires Catholics to fast and to abstain from meat on just two days of Lent—Ash Wednesday and Good Friday.

U. S. Catholic bishops emphasized in a pastoral letter that the Pope's intention was not to eliminate Lenten fasting, but to put it on a voluntary basis. Fasting undertaken as a self-imposed discipline, they said, has far greater spiritual value than that done in grudging compliance with rules.

The bishops pointed out that there are other ways of imitating Christ. They mentioned, for example, ministering to "the sick, the poor, the underprivileged, the imprisoned, the bedridden, the discouraged, the stranger, the lonely, and persons of other color, nationalities or backgrounds than our own.

"In the light of grave human needs which weigh on Christian conscience at all seasons, we urge particularly during Lent, generosity to local, national and world programs of sharing of all things needed...to implement the right of the poor to their part in our abandunance," they said.

They also recommended that Lent be regarded as a time for extra attention to spiritual studies, including Bible reading; for special diligence in mass attendance and other devotions and for voluntary acts of self-denial, other than fasting.

The new Catholic approach to Lent is quite similar to that which a number of major Protestant communions, including Anglicans and Lutherans, have followed in recent centuries. The man in the pew is told, in effect:

"In our hectic and self-indulgent society, it is good to set aside a season each year to remember that the way of Christ is the way of the cross. It demands self-denial and sacrifice.

"You are free to choose your own way of keeping Lent, because you should know better than anyone else the particular kind of discipline most needful to your soul's health. You may profit from giving up something —to bring an over-pampered appetite under control.

"On the other hand, you may be in greater need of adding something to your life — compassion for others, or a little reading to plug some of the gaps in your religious knowledge.

"Perhaps, your greatest need is to simplify your life, to pull back a little bit from the rat race and find time for prayer, meditation and worship.

"It's up to you HOW you observe Lent. But if you ignore it altogether, you'll be ignoring 17 centuries of collective experience which attest that this penitential season is as valuable to the committed Christian as spring training is to an athlete."

SEMINARY SPEAKER — Rt. Rev. C. Kilmer Myers, Episcopal Bishop of the Diocese of California, will discuss the "inter-city complex of the Bay Area" at San Francisco Theological Seminary at 3 p.m. Wednesday in Alexander Hall. The public is invited.

Church Will Be Used By Members Of Two Faiths

BURNHAM, England (UPI)—This English town plans to build a church which will be used by both Roman Catholics and Protestants.

Catholic Father Nicholas Lash said the church will be built in 1968 at a cost of between $36,400 and $39,200 and would seat between 300 and 400 persons.

On Sundays, he said, services will be held consecutively at first and perhaps jointly later.

Rev. Alan Carey, an Anglican priest, said his bishop fully approved of the idea.

Vatican Rejects Experiments With The Liturgy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Vatican has rejected two requestes by American Catholic bishops concerning liturgical experimentation.

The U.S. Catholic Conference said this week one request was for permission to designate academic centers to supervise liturgical innovation. The other was that some experimentation be approved without prior examination by the Vatican.

Archbishop John F. Dearden of Detroit, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, said, however, the Vatican "is open to the submission of rites and texts of liturgical adaptations which have been drawn up and presented prior to actual experimental use."

The Vatican did approve several liturgical changes sought by the American bishops, including use of musical instruments other than the organ in liturgical services "provided they are played in a manner suitable to public worship."

Prosperity Held Hurting Mission Talent Search

DENVER (UPI)—Prosperity is making it difficult for churches to enlist much-needed personnel for domestic and overseas missions, according to a Methodist missions official.

"At a time of relatively high employment in an affluent society, stepping aside from opportunities for high income, professional advancement and stable living conditions in homogeneous communities seems precarious," Dr. John W. Hohannaber, of the denomination's board of missions, told the Joint Committee on Missionary Personnel at its annual meeting here.

NEW EXECUTIVE — Rev. D. Clifford Crummey this month will assume role of executive director of the Northern California Council of Churches which encompasses Marin County. Losing Nerve?

Player Of The Year Hayes Once Cut In High School

HOUSTON, Texas (AP)—Elvin Hayes, once cut from his high school varsity team because he had a "coordination problem" is the college basketball player of the year for 1968.

Hayes, the 6-8 top scorer and rebounder for the No. 1 ranked university of Houston Cougars, won the player of the year award yesterday. The two-time All-American senior polled 222½ votes to 41½ for Lew Alcindor, the 7-1½ UCLA star, in an Associated Press poll of 322 sports writers and broadcasters. One voter had the two tied.

Alcindor, who was player of the year last year as a sophomore, was 18 points ahead of Pete Maravach of Louisiana State, the nation's leading scorer, in the voting.

Hayes, nicknamed the "Big E", said being named player of the year "is a great honor."

"I wish I could cut it up and give it to my teammates," he said. "It really is for 'the team of the year' because they helped make it. It is the kind of thing that makes you want to play even harder."

Hayes, 22, a Rayville, La., native, is considered a top prospect for professional basketball, a desire he has had since childhood.

He says he wants to be recognized as a good basketball player and also as a good person.

"You can be a good ballplayer but if you don't treat people right you're nothing," he said.

He gained national prominence with his 39 points when the Cougars snapped UCLA's 47 game winning streak in January in the Astrodome before more than 50,000 spectators and another 12 million watching on television.

He scored 62 points Feb. 24 in leading Houston to a 158-81 victory over Valparaiso. It was the third highest game score for one team in major college records.

Sports

FOURTH SECTION Saturday, March 2, 1968 23

In leading the unbeaten Cougars through 26 games this season he has became the second highest career scorer in college basketball with more than 2,600 points. But he is never completely satisfied.

"I am going to push myself to the limit," he said. "I will never stop working to reach the top."

Melvin Rogers, basketball coach at Eula Britton High School at Rayville, a town of 6,000 in the cotton country of northeast Louisiana, was the one who cut Hayes from the varsity his second year.

"He was a gangling kid, all hands and feet," Rogers recalled. "He had a coordination problem so I suggested he work out with the junior varsity until he improved."

Rogers said Hayes worked hard and it paid off. Britton was runner-up in the state tournament Hays' junior year and won the championship his senior year.

Thirty-three colleges tried to recruit him.

Houston's tip on Hayes came from Isaac Morehead, then basketball coach at Texas Southern University. Hayes' sisters had attended Southern University in Baton Rouge, La., and his coach, Rogers, was a Grambling College alumnus. Both schools are in the same conference as TSU.

"We know we can't get him," Moorehead told Houston recruiters. "So anything we can do to help you recruit him can only help our basketball program. Lord knows we don't want to spend four years watching him come after us."

"I never like to be told what to do," Hayes recalled. "When I visited Houston the coaches told me I had to make up my own mind. They said I should go where I would be happiest."

He said he has never regretted the decision.

Hayes said a person should always try to realize his dream.

"Nothing is impossible," he said. "My ability has given me basketball to work at. But it makes no difference what you do as long as you try to be the best."

Olympic Boycott Threat Shakes South Africa Bid

CHICAGO (AP) — The growing threat of a boycott of the October Olympics in Mexico City has applied enough pressure for possible reconsideration of South Africa's controversial admission to the Games.

South Africa was barred from the 1964 Summer Olympiad in Tokyo because of its policy of separation of the races. It was readmitted by the International Olympic Committee last month after agreeing that its team would be free of racial lines.

The readmittance has caused a turmoil with 32 African countries declaring they would abandon the games. Other withdrawals came from Cuba, Malaysia, India, Saudi Arabia, Iraq and Syria.

The boiling point, however, seems to be controlled by Russia and the Soviet bloc, powerful Olympic competitors. Russia has not gone so far as to pull out, but has openly expressed disapproval of South Africa's participation.

The threat, financially and artistically, to the Games brought three concerned Mexican Olympic officials seeking some kind of assurance of resolving the problems, to Avery Brundage, 80-year-old IOC president.

After meeting with the trio—Pedro Ramirez Vasquez, chairman of the Mexican organizing committee, and two members of the IOC, Jose de Jesus Clark Flores and Marte R. Gomez—Brundage set the stage yesterday for reconsideration of the South Africa question.

He said he will call a meeting of the IOC's nine-member executive board, probably in Luzanne, Switzerland. Brundage is the only American on the board. The others are from France, Mexico, the Soviet Union, Pakistan, Great Britain, Lebanon, Italy and Ireland.

Brundage said it would take from 30 to 60 days to set up such a meeting. He said it would be up to the board to call a full 72-member IOC meeting as some countries have requested and that it would require another vote by the entire IOC to act again on South Africa's participation in the Games.

Brundage hinted that the issue could bounce around until near the official close of team entries eight weeks before the start of the Mexico City show Oct. 12.

Meanwhile, in Johannesburg, Rank Braun, president of the South African Olympic Committee, said South Africa "will under no circumstances withdraw from the Olympic Games."

"Preparations are already under way to compete and all arrangements will have been made by the time the Republic receives its invitation," he said.

Brundage foresees no collapse of the Games.

"They will be held at Mexico City and will be a tremendous success," he declared.

He was asked if the controversy would undermine his ideal of international fellowship through sport. "I hope not," he said.

The Mexican delegation expressed satisfaction with their meeting with Brundage and pledge that "Mexico will continue readying for the forthcoming gathering of the youth of the world."

Along Comes A Fellow Who Fights For Nothing

The last fighter I knew who went to college with anything but a pail and a mop was Chuck Davey. Chuck was a straight "A" student at Michigan State, but one night he flunked Kid Gavilan and the market in college fighters has been bearish ever since.

There have been intellectuals of a sort. Gene Tunney read Shakespeare. On the other side of the coin, Sonny Liston's litterary efforts began and stopped with "Keep Out, This Means You." Everything else was Sanskrit.

A guy on his way to a college degree usually loses interest in prize fighting the first time he sees a cutaway drawing of the brain in anatomy class. Boxers are so notoriously bad at mathematics that Max Baer once sold 110⅜s of himself.

But now along comes Armando Muniz, who can not only add and go to college, but he prize-fights for nothing.

Confirmation Of Folly

This would tend to confirm the opinion of grizzled fight managers of the folly of going to college, but Mando may be the only guy in the country with cauliflowered ears taking differential calculus. The group he normally moves in woud be able to understand his sport only if he explained that the contest ended when one of the combatants was unable to reach his feet before the count reached a positive integer which equaled the sum of the square root of 100.

Remaining an amateur at a blood-letting sport like boxing is like steeplejacking for wall plaques, putting out oil well fires for medals, or rescuing submarines for cigar bands. The last amateur sport left is chasing foxes over hedges. Any activity where the payoff MIGHT be skull fracture should be one where the alternative is a king's ransom, or at least not a watch with a picture of a mouse on it.

Headlocks Sealed Ears

But lest anyone think Mando disapproves of the profit motive, or should be locked in a room from which the cutlery has been carefully removed first, be advised that his vice is not its own reward. In the first place, his ears got sealed off not by boxing gloves but by headlocks. Part of Mando's education was payoff by scholarships on the wrestling teams, the last one at UCLA. The prize-fighting evolved partly because Mando trains in a gym where professional wrestlers rehearse, and he decided early that if he was going to make a living acting, he wanted to have some lines longer than a grunt. Besides, at 147 pounds it would take a year of milkshakes to acquire a sufficient pot belly, also he would have to dye his raven locks, and he can't seem to get the hang of screwing in a monacle.

He's Bucking A Trend

But prize-fighting mainly evolved because Mando is bucking a trend: he WANTS to go to the 1968 Olympics. Although Mexican-born (Chihuahua 1946), he would like to win a gold medal for the USA, which would make him even more of an oddity at the university than his cauliflower ears.

He fights in the finals of the Golden Gloves at the Olympic Auditorium Saturday night. As a boxer, there are those who say his style is still modeled more like a guy looking for a mat pin than a kayo. A swarmer, you might say he crowds to please.

This pleasing crowder, a gentleman, a scholar and a judge of fine whiskers must, if he wins Saturday, go to the national Golden Gloves finals in Salt Lake City next month, then to the AAU in Toledo, then to the Olypmic tryouts in Albuquerque this summer.

That's a lot of nosebleeds, black eyes and earaches to go through to get on a team a lot of his native-born countrymen wouldn't even answer the telephone to get on, but, in the immortal words of Jack Hurley, "What could you expect of a college man and an amateur, at that?" Or, as Yussel Jacobs once mourned of a fighter who preferred a mortar board to a broken nose, "Books roont more fighters than Joe Louis."

Clipper In Soccer Exhibition Opener

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Oakland Clippers, United States soccer champions, will open their exhibition season tomorrow against the strong Guadalajara club, seven times champion of Mexico in the past 10 years.

Dr. Aleksander Obradovic, general manager who has brought a score of players from Europe and the Americas to Oakland, sees the game as a good test of the Clippers, internationally. Most of the '67 champions are back.

A Baseball Machine's Revolt

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The temperature is in the 40s, Frank Robinson says his own contract demands are ridiculous and Ted Savage lost a fight with the pitching machine.

Other than that, spring training is just routine.

Just about all the baseball camps in Florida had to curtail outdoor workouts yesterday because of the cold wave that Chicago White Sox Manager Eddie Stanky calls the worst in 25 years.

Strong winds made the weather seem even colder and Stanky moaned, "The players can't lose any weight in this weather."

A lot of the most important action so far this spring has been taking place indoors anyhow—on the long-distance telephone.

DOUBLE RIDICULE

The Baltimore Orioles, for instance, are sending AT&T stock soaring with their phone calls to Los Angeles, home of Frank Robinson, who is insulted with the club's offer of only $100,000.

Robinson, the American League's Most Valuable Player in 1966 when the Orioles won the pennant, was surprised at being offered the same salary he was paid last year when he hit .311 and had 30 homers and 94 runs batted in. He countered with a figure of $150,000.

"If they can be ridiculous," he said, "so can I."

At last report, the parties still were officially $20,000 apart, although Robinson intimates he'd sign for $115,000, $10,000 more than the Orioles are offering.

"We've still got a gap," said Oriole personnel director Harry Dalton, "but we're getting closer."

IT FELL ON HIM

In Arizona, where the temperature is a little closer to what it should be, the strange happenings are taking place on the diamond.

Ted Savage of the Chicago Cubs didn't like the speed of the pitches the machine was serving up and he went out to the mound to adjust it. The thing fell on him and it took four stitches to close up the gash between his right thumb and index finger.

The Orioles have other important holdouts besides Robinson. Infielder Dave Johnson and outfielder Curt Blefary still are not satisfied with the contracts offered them.

But the Cincinnati Reds are leading the league in disgruntled players as no less than eight players are officially labeled as holdouts.

These include pitchers Jim Maloney, Mel Queen and Jay Ritchie along with outfielders Vada Pinson and Pete Rose and infielders Tommy Helms, Chico Ruiz and Hal McRae.

But some key players did come to terms yesterday. Dal Maxvill, St. Louis Cardinal shortstop, affixed his name to a contract calling for some $35,000 and Minnesota outfielder Tony Oliva signed for about $50,000.

Giants' Major Problem: Searching For A Lefty

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (AP)—There's a big demand for a good left-handed batter on the San Francisco Giants this season.

With veteran catcher Tom Haller, .251 and 14 home runs last year, traded to the Los Angeles Dodgers, it looks as if first baseman Willie McCovey will be the only left-handed hitting regular in the National League club's lineup. McCovey hit .276 last season with 31 home runs and 91 runs batted in.

The infield roster lists only Don Mason and Bob Schroeder as lefties, and neither figures, at this early training stage to play many games with the Giants. Schroeder hit .230 in 62 games with San Francisco last year; Mason .000 in his three times at bat in four games.

Ty Cline, obtained from Atlanta early last season as insurance, capably relieved Willie Mays when the great outfielder was out with the flu. Cline, who both throws as well as bats left-handed, hit .270 in 64 games, many as a pinch hitter.

Left-handed outfielder Ken Henderson hit a disappointing .190 in 65 games with the Giants but was .266 with Phoenix. Dave Marshall, .294 with Phoenix, is another left-handed batter on the roster, but may not stick.

Tito Fuentes, second sacker last season who may wind up in the minors this year, and Cesar Gutierrez, another infielder, still are missing from training camp. They may be stranded in Dominican Republic and Venezuela, respectively, by visa problems.

The Giants will play an intrasquad game Sunday, with Mays leading one team and Davenport the other.

Winds Rip Spectrum Once Again

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—High winds ripped holes yesterday in the roof of Philadelphia's $12 million Spectrum for the second time in two weeks and Mayor James H. J. Tate closed the new sports arena "indefinitely."

"The safety of the people is paramount," Tate said in his announcement that the oval-shaped arena would be closed until necessary repairs are made.

The mayor's action meant cancellation of a National Basketball Association game Friday night between the Philadelphia 76ers and Los Angeles Lakers.

Tomorrow the Flyers National Hockey League team is scheduled to play Oakland at Spectrum. The following night, the Buster Mathis-Joe Frazier heavyweight fight is to be shown at the Spectrum from New York in closed-circuit television.

Winds, measured by the Weather Bureau at up to 50 miles an hour, ripped shingles in the roof near where it was severely damaged Feb. 17, with a loss estimated at $35,000.

Edwards Takes Aim: Brundage A 'Lobbyist'

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Harry Edwards, Negro teacher at San Jose State College and leader of a drive for black athletes to boycott the 1968 Olympic Games, declared yesterday that Avery Brundage lobbied for South Africa's readmission to Olympic competition.

Edwards declared his Olympic boycott committee will seek to organize international track and field competition in an African nation in the late summer.

He said the committee also will work to persuade Negro athletes not to enroll at the University of California at Berkeley, the University of Texas at El Paso, and not to participate with the New York Athletic Club, the Columbus, Ohio, Athletic Club, and the West Side Tennis Club in New York.

"In conjunction with our demands made in November, 1967, concerning the United States Olympic Committee and Avery Brundage, we issue the following based upon our investigations:

"The U.S. Olympic Committee, which in line with its racist demeanor does not seat any black people, was a prime force in the political lobbying which enabled the white racist country of South Africa to be reinstated into the international Olympic movement under the sham integration that they concocted.

"The basic motive underlying the activity of the U.S. Olympic Committee is the safeguarding of the present amicable state of U.S.-South African political, economic, and military relations.

"Brundage personally sought to solidify support behind the move to readmit South Africa even though basically there has been no change in white South Africa's demeanor toward 14 million black people.

Warriors Hit Hard Again

Combined UPI & AP

The incomparable Oscar Robertson paced a fourth period surge that lifted the Cincinnati Royals to a 122-101 victory over the battered San Francisco Warriors in a National Basketball Association game at the Cow Palace last night.

The Royals led by as much as 18 points in the early going, saw that dwindle to two, 82-80, and then ran off eight straight points to lead by 10, 90-80, early in the last period. From then on, the Warriors played catch-up with disastrous results.

After the San Franciscans made a last-gasp run, hitting seven points in a row to trail 90-87, Robertson scored ten of his game-high 31 points in a four-minute, 19-4 Cincy outburst that turned the game into a runaway at 109-91.

The Warriors, who have resembled the Light Brigade in retreat recently, played without supercenter Nate Thurmond, forward Joe Ellis, and guards Al Attles and Jim King, all injured.

The loss was the Warriors' third in a row and dropped them two full games behind second-place Los Angeles in the Western Division of the NBA.

Jerry Lucas followed the "Big O" in the Royals' scoring column with 22, while grabbing 20 rebounds. Rudy Larusso's 21 led SF, followed by Jeff Mullins' 19.

The Warriors will try to stop their skid against the hot Baltimore Bullets tonight at the Cow Palace. The Bullets, led by likely Rookie of the Year Earl (the Pearl) Monroe, routed San Diego 156-114 last night.

Leroy Kelly Signs Cleveland Pact

CLEVELAND (AP) — Halfback Leroy Kelly signed a new fouri-year contract Friday with the Cleveland Browns.

Salary terms were not disclosed, but Kelly, the National Football League's top rusher last season with 1,205 yards, said he was "very pleased" to be staying with the Browns.

Kelly, 25, signed a contract with the club in 1966 but chose to play out his option last season instead of signing a new contract.

Owner Art Modell said the Browns were very happy to have Kelly back.

In 1966, his first year as a regular, Kelly was edged out by Chicago's Gale Sayers for rushing honors. Kelly finished with 1,141 yards.

The flashing running back from Morgan State, said before last season that he was playing out his option.

"I don't want to leave Cleveland," Kelly said. "However, if I don't get the money I think I'm entitled to I won't be with the Browns next season."

He was one of five Browns who got into a salary dispute with Modell before the 1967 training season. Two of the five were traded and the other three reported in August.

Kelly was fined $1,400 for missing two weeks practice.

He earned about $18,000 for 1967. This was 10 per cent less than his 1966 salary. The pay cut is automatic for a player who plays out his option.

Modell reportedly offered Kelly $35,000 for the 1967 season.

Kelly was picked on the NFL All-Pro team in 1966 and 1967.

Bruins Gain Tie In Blitz

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The UCLA basketball team today was assured of at least a tie for its sixth Pacific-8 title in the last seven years.

The Bruins gained the tie last night, using a five-man blitz to crush Stanford, 100-62. Meanwhile California, using a one-man blitz, was beating Southern California 91-90 in overtime.

In other games, Oregon State edged Washington 74-72 and Oregon defeated Washington State 81-73.

Suddenly the Bruins attacked. Only one field goal attempt of 20 tried in the last 13 minutes of the first half didn't go in. UCLA led 49-30 at halftime.

The blitz continued in the second half and when it was over, 7-foot-1½ center Lew Alcindor had scored 31 points, Lucius Allen 21 and Mike Lynn 14.

California's blitz lasted just four minutes and was all the work of guard Russ Critchfield.

Then Critchfield went to work. He put Cal ahead 80-78 with a 20-foot jump shot, hit another to put the Bears ahead 82-80 a minute later and then scored on a driving layup and a free throw for an 85-84 California lead with 2:47 left.

Hewitt put in a short shot to give USC an 86-85 lead but Critchfield got credit for a basket when Ron Taylor was called for goaltending.

Mack Calvin gave USC an 88-87 lead on a driving shot with 47 seconds left but Bob Wolfe's two free throws put Cal up by a point with 33 seconds to play.

Taylor hooked one for a 90-89 Cal lead but then back came Critchfield for the winning basket, a soft 10-foot jump shot with 10 seconds left.

Presley led all scorers with 31 points. Critchfield had 26.

The Beavers' 7-foot sophomore center Vic Bartolome scored 18 points as OSU bukit up a nine-point lead with less than two minutes to play. Then Washington came tearing back on George Irvine's cluth shooting.

Oregon, behind Ken Smith and Rick Abrahamson, finally won a Pac-8 game.

Smith scored 24 points and Abrahamson hit seven of eight from the field. The Ducks held all-Pac-8 center Jim McKean to just two points in the first half and 11 overall.

In games tonight, UCLA playing at home, can wrap up the title with a victory over California. USC hosts Stanford; Oregon State hosts Washington State and Oregon hosts Washington.

Quite A Preliminary: Middleweight Title Bout

NEW YORK (AP)—With most of the fans buzzing over the Joe Frazier-Buster Mathis heavyweight fight, the middleweight title scrap between champion Emile Griffith and Nino Benvenuti on the same card Monday night has almost been relegated to the preliminary class.

"Some preliminary," Howie Albert, co-manager of Griffith said today. "For the kind of money Emile is getting it could be the most expensive preliminary in history."

Griffith is getting $175,000 and Benvenuti $80,000 for their third middleweight title fight in Madison Square Garden. It will on at 9:30 p.m., EST, and will be followed by the battle of the unbeatens for New York, Massachusetts, Maine and Illinois recognition as world heavyweight champion. Both fights are scheduled for 15 rounds.

Frazier's purse is $175,000 and Mathis' $75,000 for a total of $505,000 for the four featured fighters in the new Madison Square Garden.

They charged from $10 to $100 in an attempt to cover the financial nut. The lower-priced seats went fast, but there has been resistance to the $75 and $100 tickets. Plenty of them are available, said Harry Markson, the Garden's director of boxing.

Markson said he expected a crowd of 17,500 to pay upwards of $500,000. Markson usually is conservative in his estimates. Previously, he had mentioned $600,000 to $700,000 and that would not be too far off.

Girls Take Spotlight In Track

CLEVELAND (AP) — It was Ladies Night at the 28th Knights of Columbus track meet yesterday, except for a shot at the world's indoor pole-vault record.

John Vaughn of UCLA tried the bar three times at 17-5 and missed, then went once more for the crowd and missed that, too.

Dave Patrick of Villanova turned in a 2:08.8 in the 1,000-yard run, but the big ovation went to Madeline Manning and Eleanor Montgomery.

Both are Cleveland girls attending Tennessee State and the crowd roared its approval when Madeline nipped 16-year-old Nancy Shafer of the Canton Track Club to win the 800 in 2:17.5.

Miss Manning holds the world's record at that distance. She came back in the 400 with a 55.9, a meet record, and was four yards ahead of Jane Burnett of Washington, D.C.

Miss Montgomery, who set the American high jump record with a 5-10½ leap last week, easily won the event in 5-10¾, outdistancing Russia's Antonina Okorokova at 5-8.

Eleanor set the bar at 5-11½, the world's record, but failed.

Five members of the Soviet Union's track and field team were in the meet and they won two events—Tatyana Talisheva in the women's 50-yard dash, 6.0, and high jumper Valentine Gavrilov, 7.0.

Vaughn won the pole vault at 17-0, then tried to top Bob Seagren's record of 17-4¼.

The Reno Turf Club, a legal bookie operation, said San Francisco is 12-5 in the National League race.

Carter Takes Over In Bowling Tourney

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Don Carter of Tarzana, Calif., moved into Saturday's finals of the $50,000 Professional Bowlers Association Buckeye Open by winning six of his final eight games in Friday night's semifinals.

Carter, who was in 13th place going into Friday night's play, fired high games of 299 and 279 and averaged 244 in his series to move into fourth position.

Peggy Is Pretty Cinch For Crown

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Barring an attack of locusts or something equally unforeseen, Peggy Fleming will win her third straight world figure skating title today.

The 19-year-old Olympic champion from Colorado Springs, Colo., is so far ahead of the competition with only today's free-skating competition remaining that the title is virtually hers.

Tim Wood of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., did not fare so well in his bid for the men's title. Despite a valiant attempt in the free skating, Wood lost narrowly to Emmerich Danzer of Austria, the defending champion.

Danzer finished with 12 ordinals and 2,195.2 points to Woods 15 ordinals and 2,189.9 points. Wood, trying to make up a deficit, attempted some daring leaps in his free skating, but one slip kept him from the necessary points.

"I think I was good enough to win despite the slip," Wood said afterwards. "I skated my full program and made no other mistakes."

Danzer afterward announced his retirement from amateur competition but would not say whether he would turn professional. He said he would decide in the next three weeks.

Patrick Pera of France finished third while Scott Allen of Smoke Rise, N.J., was fourth. Gary Visconti of Detroit moved up to fifth place.

Miss Fleming was near perfect in completing the compulsory figures Friday and each of the judges rated her first. She had 1,209.7 points to runner-up Gaby Seifert's 1134.8 points. The East German girl in turn led Beatrix Schuba of Austria with 1119.1 points.

The 19-year-old was her usual dedicated self during competition — tense and unsmiling. She won the perfect ordinal score of 9.0, meaning that each of the nine judges ranked her first, and 1209.7 points.

Allen, who won the men's bronze medal in the 1964 Olympics, actually scored more points than Pera, 2095.1 to 2090.1, but the decisive ordinals pushed him out of third.

"I felt exhausted towards the end and I was forced to slow down," Allen said. "It was a fair performance, but nothing more."

Golden Gate On, Strike Is Off

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A threatened strike by horsemen has been averted and Golden Gate Fields will open its 74-day race meeting as scheduled Monday at nearby Albany.

A meeting of members of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association voted unanimously last night to enter horses today for Monday's races and to continue racing through March 15. By that time they will hold another session to assess progress of the race meet.

Horsemen have been demanding a larger share of the parimutuel handle. They decided against a strike after the track officials had informed them any agreement would be retroactive to the first day of racing.

A strike to back a similar demand closed Santa Anita three days in January. There Horsemen won an increase from 40 to 43 per cent of the partimutuel betting.

Why The Stop-Gaps? Let's Build Tube Now

MARIN SEEMS TO BE rushing headlong, with ever-increasing velocity, toward traffic strangulation.

Already, the driving time for commuters to and from San Francisco has risen markedly. What only a few short years ago was a 40-minute run has now been extended to an hour or more. On every side you hear commuters cite personal experiences along these lines.

WHAT TO DO about it?

Tom Hardcastle, a commuter of many years' experience who serves on the Golden Gate Bridge District board, was instrumental in putting together a long-range plan to cope with the situation.

First, said advocates of this approach, organize a Marin transit district to take over Greyhound's buses and build up the bus system so as to encourage commuters out of their private cars and into buses, thereby easing highway congestion.

At one point, supporters of this approach had Golden Gate Bridge directors pretty firmly "sold" on the idea of using bridge toll money to subsidize transit district bus operations.

The East Bay's A/C Transit system is used as shining example of what can be done to increase bus passenger traffic. Improve equipment — schedules — service and, presto! passenger loads increase.

TROUBLE IS, each Marin commuter seems to want everyone else to ride the bus to open up the highway for his own, personal, exclusive use. Since each commuter seems to feel this way, nobody is left to ride the buses.

Also, there are differences in the characteristics of the mass of residents in the East Bay and the mass of residents in Marin. These are evident if you step aboard an A/C Transit bus and compare its load of passengers with those aboard a Marin-bound Greyhound.

Without going into statistical detail, it is sufficient to observe that the East Bay system develops considerable off-peak traffic, shopper traffic and other non-commute traffic — unlikely to be duplicated in volume in Marin.

A SECOND PHASE of the long-range thinking of Hardcastle and others who share his views is that a second deck on the bridge will reduce highway congestion now, assuming San Francisco does something to relieve surface congestion in that city.)

Buses and the second deck both are envisioned only as stop-gap remedies pending the ultimate construction of a rapid transit rail system to cross under the bay in a tube.

While the financial burden of such a project would be tremendous, it would not be unbearable.

Previous rapid transit studies have indicated that Marin's resources are such as to be able to support construction costs of the system in Marin, to the edge of the bay.

Presumably, the City and County of San Francisco could do the same over there.

THAT LEAVES the frightfully expensive underwater tube to find funds for.

Those who have studied the situation in depth have concluded that tolls from vehicular traffic on the Golden Gate Bridge could be raised to provide sufficient funds to pay off bonds to build a Marin-San Francisco rapid transit rail tube.

Trouble is, if bridge tolls are pledged (1. to help meet continuing bus operating deficits and (2) to retire bonds needed to build a costly second deck on the Golden Gate Bridge, the availability of bridge toll money to pay for transit tube construction is pushed far into the future.

Like when everybody now living is dead and gone.

Question: Why not skip the interim diversion of money to buses and second deck so at to get started at once on a rapid transit rail system linked to San Francisco by underwater tube?

A Book To Build A Dream On

Gardeners, like travelers, live in a fantasy world. While travelers pour over travel folders and dream of visiting exotic places, the gardener's dream book is the seed catalogue and his fantasies consist of growing the perfect flowers and vegetables pictured in its glossy pages.

Of course, this is seldom to be. Flowers and vegetables grown under natural conditions prevailing in Marin and elsewhere are subject to assorted blights, fungi, poxes, insects, bird pecks and animal depredations.

HOW TO PROTECT YOUR HOME

Do you want to protect your home against burglary? Then follow these tips recommended by the New England Citizens Crime Commission.

1. When you move into a new house, have all the locks changed immediately by a licensed locksmith.

2. Don't "hide" your housekeys outside in the usual, obvious places.

3. Don't carry your house and car keys on the same chain, and don't have any identification on the chain with the housekeys.

4. Never leave your door unlocked; check all doors and windows before you go to bed.

5. When you go on a trip, notify the local police; have the lawn mowed or walk sholveled; stop milk, newspaper and mail deliveries.

6. If possible, have a burglar alarm system installed.

Following reasonable regulations is not only good sense, but if offers a chance to each of us to apply God's harmony and order to the running of human affairs.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Sausalito School Tax Raise Needed

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The voters of Sausalito are being asked to affirm their support of a cornerstone of our American tradition — public education. Education is and should be the concern and responsibility of every member of the community. All of us gain to the degree in which our citizens are educated.

Some of us may be critical of this or that item in the school budget or curriculum; others are equally approving of the very same item. Few of us, however, are qualified to judge the success or lack of success of academic programs and teaching methods.

Certainly it is true that never will all of us agree on every particular. However, some generalizations can be made: a low salary scale will not attract top teachers (two years ago our pay scale ranked second in the Bay Area, but last year, in order not to increase the budget, the trustees denied salary increases and our ranking dropped to 11th place); small classes permit individual instruction for each child from the under-achiever to the "gifted," and for this specific purpose, we received $23,000 from the state government this year.

The requested tax base rate of $2.45 (of the 20 cent rise, 15 cent is for salary increases and 5 cents is for portable classrooms) is clearly in line with the tax bases of other districts. True, we pay an over-ride, a county-assessed contribution, and 3½ cents on bonds. But, so do the other districts in the county pay over-rides, county assessments and building bonds in addition to their base taxes.

It is unfortunate that the citizens of Sausalito are so divided on the issue of schools. Such a division can only serve to inflict suffering on our children, our city and the greater community. What is called for is a spirit of good will and cooperation in a common striving for academic excellence and the preparation of youngsters for life in a difficult world.

Failure to provide this kind of experience would be morally delinquent and fiscally irresponsible. Failure to support our tax base would be a vote to destroy public education in Sausalito.

Dog Owner Wants Strict Laws

Editor, Independent-Journal:

May I make a comment in answer to Mr. Henry Gamboa's letter which appeared in your paper tonight (Feb. 27)? He commented about the attitude of the owners of dogs who are allowed to damage shrubbery in shopping centers. As a dog owner, I am in complete agreement with this gentleman.

The problem starts because anyone can own a dog, but not everyone takes proper care of his dog.

Perhaps the ladies of Novato have the right answer to the problem. In the article in the I-J Reporter's Notebook by Theron Newell on the same date it was reported the Novato City Council may get a proposed new dog control law that would probably propose a stiff fine for owners of dogs caught running at large.

That seems like a solution for the dog problem in the shopping centers, and elsewhere.

Democrats So Confused They Neglect Candidacy

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The disarray of the Democratic party, as least in Marin, was demonstrated again last week when the party's county central committee almost was caught flat-footed without a candidate for the state Assembly.

It was only a chance remark by an Independent-Journal reporter at the committee's Feb. 20 meeting that tipped off its members that they had less than 24 hours to find someone to file a declaration of intent to seek the Seventh Assembly District seat. Not one of the 16 committee members present knew of the requirement.

All they could muster were a few weak jokes about finding someone to run against Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael. On the basis of their past success in opposing Bagley, it should be no surprise that they look on the race with little joy.

THE CENTRAL committee is not supposed to endorse candidates before the primary, but if it were functioning properly it would have taken some step to encourage a strong candidate to seek the office. And not the night before the deadline.

So committee member Robert Mertle, because the deadline to file papers locally had passed, drove up to Sacramento the next day and did his duty. As it turned out, his trip was unnecessary because another faithful candidate, James Pockrus, already had filed the day before.

STRONG RUMORS are being heard that Thomas Reed of Ross will be California's next national committeeman. He has been travelling around the nation arranging appearances for non-candidate Reagan.

If elected to the position, Reed would be a broker of considerable power at the GOP national convention. The election of committeeman and committeewoman is expected when the state's 86 delegates reach the convention.

Marin GOP chairman Charles Michals will be the only other Marinite in the delegation. He is an alternate to Marco Hellman of San Francisco.

A MEMBER of the governor's staff has complained to this reporter about a recent column critical of Reagan for disrupting the Bay Area Transportation Study Commission by replacing its most valuable members.

Their appointments expired in November, he noted, and "if the Legislature had not wanted these appointments reconsidered in midstream, presumably they would have so provided."

The staff man seems unaware that the appointments expired because the commission originally was supposed to go out of business last year, but later it got one year added to its life. This sort of error by the governor's staff is probably only the result of years of political exile. It takes awhile to catch up.

One of the fired commissioners, incidentally, John Beckett of Palo Alto (a former resident of Kentfield), was put right back on the commission by Santa Clara County supervisors. They must know something about his abilities that is not recognized in Sacramento.

THE CLUB GOLF CHAMP, no shrinking violet he, gave a demonstration on the practice tee and sent one drive booming over 300 yards down the fairway. "Not bad," conceded one spectator, "but how are your putts?" "Putts?" exhoed the champ. "That WAS a putt!"

The crusty president of an upstate Newy York savings bank decided to be candid when somebody asked him, "How did you get started in the banking business?"

"There was nothing to it," confessed the old money bags. "I just hung out a sign saying 'Bank.' First thing you know, a fellow comes along and deposits $100. Then one hands over $200. A little later, another deposits 500 smackers. By this time I was so confident I put in $10 of my own money."

U.S., Canada Prove Borders Not Needed

By EVERETT McKINLEY DIRKSEN

The great battle of the century is the battle between communism and freedom. Wherever the battle rages — whether hot or cold — it is aimed at strengthing an international border somehwere with more guns and barbed wire and concrete, or at leveling an established boundary with a superiority of gunfire.

In such cruel times as these, when the affairs of the world are so unsettled and the perils of war and more war, famine and racial strife are our greatest concerns, when we long for a promise of hope, we have only to look up and we can see that promise.

It is the hope for peace exemplified in the boundary line that separates, and yet joins, Canada and the United States.

THE WORLD CAN SEE by lifting up its eyes that two nations can live face to face across a thin line that you find only on a map, a line without fencing or armed guards, with absolutely no fear of each other, with respect for each other. Their border is an unfortified, heart-warming symbol of trust, cooperation and friendship; the symbol of a bond. And such friends can disagree as they please without sacrificing the peace.

That is the great gift of our border with Canada.

No doubt many statesmen in troubled continents have wondered how such an arrangement can maintain without devastating argument. Differences between Canadians and Americans have now and then appeared and, sometimes, in rather heated opinion. Nothing, however, has ever interfered with out relations that is anything like the wound recently reopened in Canada's body politic by the emotional agitations of that man known as "Le Grand Charlie" — President DeGaulle of France — who wants to create yet another border, a border of conflict around Quebec.

THE IMMENSITY of the Canadian-American friendship can be explained in part when we consider the physical facts of Canada. Second only to the Soviet Union in land area, Canada's 20 million people have made of their vast terrain and resources a land of great plenty that has won the admiration of the world. To till the soil of such an enormous acreage so productively with so comparatively few people, to mine so profitably for their own and the world's benefit their deep-sunk veins of rich ore, to trade so effectively across the globe's tariff barriers and, through the years, to provide so splendid an example of democracy effectively at work has made Canada rich, strong, and vibrant.

The misunderstandings and argument between us can be explained by the continuing, dynamic development of our two nations. Where there is so much being done, where there is such richness to be brought into being, there are bound to be arguments. In recent years, the scope and volume of United States investment in Canada have given rise to some sharp questioning by some Canadian economists and government leaders. Not, perhaps, without reason.

Some Americans have been distressed by Canada's policy of trade with Communist China, especially the trade in grain and other foodstuffs. That trade has not been an action of which we in the 50 states can approve, but it is an action that has been decided upon by a sovereign, neighbornation for reasons best known to itself. We abide by it like the good neighbors we try to be.

WE LOOK ACROSS the oceans and we see borders all over the world violated every day. We see apparently peaceful borders that stop short the free flow of ideas and people. Such streams of thought and enterprise are among the important factors that help Canada and the United States to thrive. Canadians and Americans have turned their border into an asset. It is not a liability to be endured with reluctance and envy.

The international line across North America, from the Bay of Fundy on the east to the Juan de Fuca Strait on the west, is then that promise of hope so much needed by the world.

The world needs no more borders.

Maneuvers In Laos Pose New War Threat

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The increasing tempo of the fighting in Laos is giving grave concern to Washington and to all of those who fear the war in Vietnam is on the verge of spreading into a much larger conflagration.

Especially concerned also is Thailand.

Bangkok reports say the Thais already are considering some form of intervention should the Communists continue their westward push toward their Mekong River boundary with Laos.

OF FAR GREATER danger is the possibility of another direct confrontation between the United States and Russia. This could come should events prove that the 1962 Geneva accord guaranteeing Laotian neutrality no longer had any vvalidity even on paper.

Since Russia still recognizes Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma as the neustralist leader of Laos, there is no reason to believe the Soviets would welcome such an event any more than would the United States.

The North Vietnamese, never having admitted they had troops in Laos even before 1962, have seen no reason since to admit their presence despite their known use of the Ho Chi Minh trail to supply their forces in South Vietnam and the charge by Laos that North Vietnamese troops in Laos now number some 40,000.

The United States withdrew its military adviers from Laos after the 1962 agreement but in recent weeks has, by agreement with Souvanna, stepped up its attacks on North Vietnamese convoys along the trail under the guise of "armed reconnaisance."

THE MOTIVE behind the new Communist offensive in Laos still is unclear but a number of explanations have been advanced.

One is that, at least in the south, they simply are coming down from the mountains as they usually do at this time of year to scrounge for rice.

A second is that by limited expansion of the conflict in Vietnam they are trying to demonstrate to the American people the depths of the Southeast Asian quagmire.

A third is that they are trying to expand the system of trails which make up the supply line to South Vietnam.

The last makes a certain amount of sense.

Muong Phalene in Laos, reportedly taken by the Communists this week, is on highway 9 leading into South Vietnam and a vital supply line for red forces besieging the Americans at Khe Sanh near the demilitarized zone.

Attopeu, in extreme southern Laos and another seeming Communist objective, lies almost directly opposite Dak To in South Vietnam, scene of a major Communist offensive last fall and along another invasion route to cut South Vietnam in two.

KHE SANH-
DIEN BIEN PHU

Alioto Doctors His City

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Buried beneath the red carpet, a foot buzzer triggers an impulse, the door swings open, and Mayor Joseph L. Alioto steps from behind his mahogany desk with gold pencil in hand.

At 52, a ribbon of dark hair streaks his balding head, a blue suit tapers snugly around his still-narrow waist, his words are enunciated with court-room clarity, his message is chilling and unembellished.

"Time may have run out for cities like Newark and Baltimore," Mayor Alioto says. "But I don't think it has for us."

He leans back in his brown leather chair and outlines his attack on the festering forces of urban rot in his city of 714,000 residents.

The plan is lucid: San Francisco is to become an international laboratory for crime studies and a metropolis cleared of ghettos by private development. He tells it with utmost certainty.

"Our greatest problems are joblessness and the lack of low-cost housing," he said. "Eliminate these, and you ameliorate every related ailment—rising crime and taxes, the growth of ghettos, the exodus of the middle class.

"Put a big enough carrot in front of private industry and watch them complete like hell for it. Let them build the low-rent housing we need. And they will if that carrot is a tax incentive, like a five-year tax write-off."

MAYOR JOSEPH L. ALIOTO
Wants to cure San Francisco's ills.

Aliotto didn't wait until his inauguration to become the architect of these restoration plans. The son of an immigrant fisherman, he entered the nonpartisan mayoralty race just 56 days before the November election, won handily over a field of 17 candidates and set off on a marathon pace.

He scurried about the nation, securing a promise from four airlines to train 2,500 persons in San Francisco's minority neighborhoods, a commitment from several unions to begin minority-group apprenticeship programs, and a pledge from the U.S. Commerce Department to finance a study for rejuvenating the city's moribund shipbuilding industry.

Back in San Francisco, he roamed the slums of Hunter's Point, where racial riots flamed in 1966, and exhorted Negro youths to settle their grievances in City Hall, not on the streets.

He put a $53 million federal redevelopment program back on its tracks after it had been derailed for six months. He permitted Warner Bros., to film a movie at the airport in exchange for an agreement to construct a swimming pool in the Hunter's Point area.

The city's Negro community now compose 12 per cent of the total population and minority groups account for 56 per cent of the public school enrollment; crime has risen annually since 1959; the 5,736 low-rent housing units are numerically inadequate; freeways and bridges are clogged.

But for each of these ills, Alioto is convinced there is a workable solution. He is asking big business to pick up an additional $25 million annually in taxes and has proposed that out-of-city commuters pay a monthly service charge. These measures are mandatory, he says, to provide tax relief for the small-home owners.

A newly created crime commission also is expected to bring fresh approaches to old problems. The commission was formed to study the relationship of law enforcement to matters ranging from homosexuals to hippies, student disturbances to topless entertainment.

"San Francisco has an international reputation of being the ideal laboratory in which to study 20th century crime and criminal law," said Alioto, one of the nation's most successful antitrust lawyers. "We are going to take advantage of it."

ANOTHER DIEN BIEN PHU?

Khe Sanh Recalls French Downfall

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some 5,000 U. S. Marines are nearly surrounded by enemy forces about four times their number at Khe Sanh, a remote outpost on a red clay bluff in the northwest corner of South Vietnam.

There, both sides prepare for what is expected to be the major battle of the Vietnam war.

The big question is: Will Khe Sanh be another Dien Bien Phu?

It was at Dien Bien Phu, a valley outpost similar in topography to Khe Sanh, though located in the mountains 180 miles northwest of Hanoi in what is now North Vietnam, that the end came for the French in Indochina. The French poured in paratroops to hold this bastion, but the Communists ringed the hills with heavy artillery and laid seige for 55 dys.

On May 7, 1954, 10,000 Frenchmen surrendered. When the Viet Minh red flag went up, 3,000 French troops had died in the valley or on its hilly outposts. Another 7,000 later died in prison camps or on forced marches.

Two months later, the French were ready to leave Vietnam.

Now, nearly 14 years later, Dien Bien Phu is recalled at heavily bunkered Khe Sanh.

The American military command feels that the enemy is seeking another Dien Bien Phu at the Marine outpost. The Communists apparently believe that a U. S. defeat at Khe Sanh would have the same psychological effect on the American people as the one at Dien Bien Phu did on the French.

For this reason, and others more military, U. S. forces have committed themselves to holding Khe Sanh — at all costs.

In addition to the 5,000 or 6,000 Marines at the outpost just south of the demilitarize zone near the Laotian border, there are an estimated 40,000 U.S. troops within striking distance, perhaps half of them poised at Phu Bai to the southeast, near the South China Sea coast.

This is one major difference between Khe Sanh and Dien Bien Phu. The French had no forces ready to go to the aid of the beseiged garrison, which was defended by some 16,500 troops. The Viet Minh numbered about 30,000, under the command of Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap.

Once again, it is Giap in command of the Communist troops which now threaten Khe Sanh. Though the top North Vietnamese general has 10,000 fewer troops assembled now, another 20,000 are believed to be close at hand around the demilitarized zone.

But military officials stress the biggest difference — possibly the decisive one — as the superiority of American air power and air support. This lack of air support was a key factor in the loss of Dien Bien Phu —and is expected to be the main factor in the defense of Khe Sanh.

National Panel Reports On Riots

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The President's National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders reported to the nation during the week that last summer's urban riots and their causes were just like an old moving picture that had been reshown many times since early in the century.

The 11-member commission, appointed July 27th in the wake of the riots that left scores dead, millions of dollars in damage and many Americans bewildered, said: "We have learned much. But we have uncovered no startling truths, no unique insights, no simple solutions."

The reason, said the commission, which under Gov. Otto Kerner of Illinois was to find the causes of the riots and recommend solutions, was that many of the answers could be found in reports on the Chicago riot of 1919, the Harlem riots of 1935 and 1943 and the Watts riot of 1965.

The explosive conditions that led to the riots, the panel said, were created primarily by "white racism" that relegated the Negro to "a permanently inferior economic state." Contrary to what some believe, the panel reported, the riots "were not caused by, nor were they the consequences of, any organized plan or conspiracy."

Quoting from one of its distinguished witnesses, the commission said: "It is . . . the same moving picture reshown over and over again, the same analysis, the same recommendations, the same inaction." Warning that America can not afford inaction, the report stated: "Our nation is moving toward two societies, one black, one white—separate and unequal."

The panel's sweeping recommendations, on which no price was set but which would cost billions of dollars, included improved law enforcement, welfare, employment, education, housing, and a better prepared news media.

"Hard choices must be made," said the panel, "and, if necessary, new taxes enacted."

Around The World; Around The Clock:

Saigon—North Vietnamese troops and Viet Cong guerrillas continued to press the war throughout Vietnam, ambushing and mauling a U.S. Marine patrol near the embattled outpost of Khe Sanh, attacking allied posts around Saigon and clashing with U.S. units in the Mekong Delta.

Washington—Gen. Earl G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, returned from surveying the allied military position in Vietnam and with a reported request from the U.S. command there for 50,000 to 100,000 more troops.

Washington — Gov. George Romney of Michigan, in a surprise move, withdrew from the New Hampshire presidential primary in which he was opposing former Vice President Richard Nixon for the Republican nomination. Romney said he was doing so because he had failed to win the support of rank-and-file Republicans.

Washington—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, who served in his post for seven years, stepped down to become head of the World Bank.

Jackson, Miss—Charles Evers, a Negro civil rights leader, ran ahead of six white segregationists in a special congressional election to fill the unexpired term of Rep. John Bell Williams, who was elected governor. Evers now faces a runoff election which he has little chance of winning.

New York—A state mediator, in a binding arbitration decision, said the city's garbage collectors should receive annual raises of $425. The amount was the same as that proposed by Rockefeller to end a nine-day strike of the garbage collectors.

Budapest—The Romanian delegation to the Soviet sponsored world Communist Party meeting, angered by attacks upon its foreign policy and upon other Communist nations by representatives at the meeting, walked out and all but ruined the Kremlin's hopes of solid support in its struggle with Communist China.

Jerusalem — Israel eliminated the term "enemy territory" in describing Arab land conquered in the Middle East war and applied the Biblical names of Judea and Samaria to the area instead. The name changes did not indicate a decision to assume permanent ownership of the territory, Israel added.

Behind The News

EXPERT'S VIEWS ON DRUGS

Prohibition Era Recalled

WASHINGTON (SS) — While both Congress and the Administration are split within themselves on whether to slap criminal penalties on possessors of LSD, evidence has been brought forward to show that use of the drug by college students is dropping without any Federal actions.

LSD use among students has decreased drastically over the past year, according to Dr. Helen H. Knowlis of the University of Rochester, and director of the National Drug Education Project.

She attributes the drop to two factors: Students are frightened of its effects on unborn children and they have been getting poor LSD lately with an increase in "bad trips."

Dr. Knowlis is expected to appear in the current Congressional hearings that will deal with Administration proposals for tough new penalties on drug use.

A central drug problem, she says, is that the society has bought the well-advertised proposition that there is a chemical cure for everything.

"Just watch television," says Dr. Knowlis. "For every problem, there is a drug."

Students who can be called users — those with a drug dependency — have bought the proposition as a source of cure for their emotional problem, says Dr. Knowlis. In the case of adults, dependency may be on tranquilizers; for students the drug is usually marijuana. Dr. Knowlis does not believe the number of consistent LSD users is nearly so great as the publicity would indicate.

She is convinced there is a problem with drug abuse, but its proportions are extremely difficult to measure. They include not only the young people psychologically hooked on marijuana but the perhaps millions of adults dependent on stimulants and depressants.

Most of these would probably escape the net of criminal penalties the President would like to throw over such drugs since they get their drugs on prescription. One practice is to "bicycle doctors," meaning to collect prescriptions from 5 or 10 different doctors at one time.

"Before we go overboard on drugs," Dr. Knowlis recommends, "we should look at the gun controversy. Guns kill more people than drugs, yet the only controls proposed are those regulating mail order sales."

Moreover, the penalties for illegal sale, though only a misdemeanor, can be pyramided, so that a single supplier may get many years in prison; one supplier caught by FDA was sent up for 17 years.

What the Johnson proposals do, in effect, is provide penalties for individual use since FDA already has authority to get at the traffickers.

About the new penalties, Dr. Knowlis says, "we should have learned our lesson from Prohibition."

ECONOMIC BENEFITS

Will There Be Room Left In Outer Space?

WASHINGTON (UPI) —If man can use it, there isn't enough of it.

This seems to be a law of some sort—think of food, for example, or fresh water, clean air, mineral resources, radio frequencies.

Then think of space, illimitable space. The notion that mankind could possibly exploit space to the point where there would not be enough of it for his purposes may sound silly.

Actually, according to a National Academy of Sciences study group, it is not silly at all.

Sooner or later, nations may have to agree on a system for assigning both orbits and radio frequencies to so-called applications satellites.

The academy group was appointed last year at the request of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) to investigate practical uses of space. In a recently issued interim report the scientists said:

"The potential economic benefits to our society from space systems are enormous. They may amount to billions of dollars per year to many diverse elements of our industry and commerce and thus to the general public."

Applications satellites already are being used in global weather observation and communications systems. In the future they may be employed to:

Chart agricultural, forest, and water resources.

Knit the continents and sea together in the most accurate maps ever made.

Help to educate the peoples of developing nations through the medium of satellite-to-home television broadcasts.

The study group estimated that improved weather forecasting alone would be worth $1 billion a year to mankind and that space-travel mineral riches could amount to $2 billion. It said indirect benefits —in education, for example — will be even greater.

The report urged that NASA double the $100 million a year it is now spending to develop space applications satellites and their sophisticated infrared and ultraviolet sensors and cameras.

The nations have long been struggling, not very successfully, with the problem of radio frequency "management." The radio spectrum is limited, and world agreements must be reached some day on allocation of specific frequencies for specific purposes.

A similar and related problem will arise as more and more spacecraft go into orbits from which space around the earth may be used for man's profit.

A lot depends on the location of ground stations capable of receiving information from orbiting detectives and communicators. As the academy group put it:

Mexicans Irate Over Draft, Vietnam

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—A slowly boiling controversy over sending Mexicans to fight in Vietnam could heat up considerably in March.

A group of left-wing intellectuals, calling themselves the "Mexican Committee for Solidarity with Vietnam," has called a conference for March 16-17 to protest sending Mexicans and Mexican-Americans as "cannon fodder" to Vietnam.

"With tricks and promises of easy glory and brilliant fortunes," the committee said in a newspaper advertisement, "the United States has even enrolled in its criminal ventures young men born in Mexico."

Newspaper comment on the alleged "disproportionate load" Mexican-Americans are carrying in the war has become increasingly adverse.

The afternoon paper "Universal Grafico," said recently that "20 per cent" of all U.S. troops in Vietnam are of Mexican ancestry, if not Mexican citizens. A Vietnam veteran, Jaime Alfaro, was quoted in another paper as estimating the total of Latin Americans fighting in vietnam as 150,000 including Mexican, Puerto Ricans and others.

The Pentagon says it keeps no figures on the national backgrounds of its soldiers. The enlistment rate in border areas of Texas and California, however, is known to be high, even though this means that the draft rates in those areas should be proportionately lower.

The controversy began when the Organization of Mexican-American Students, a U.S.-based group, told Sen. Robert Kennedy, D-N.Y., that "Mexicans were carrying a heavier load in Vietnam than that which corresponded to their numbers."

Afterwards Kennedy made references in Senate speeches to the fact that Mexican-Americans, Puerto Ricans and Negroes were being made to shoulder the brunt of the war effort in Vietnam.

The hub of the debate comes down to the difference in the draft laws existing in the United States and Mexico. Mexican students who go to the United States to study must sign a statement in Mexico prior to entering the United States saying that they realize that in going they become subject to the U.S. draft.

They may take out immigrant papers or apply for one-year non-immigrant permits issued to students. In neither case, according to experts, are they exempt from the draft since under both classifications they are considered residents. Immigrants must wait a minimum of five years before becoming U.S citizens.

Many Mexican migrant workers who enter the United States on green cards do not wait for the draft to get them, but enlist. It is one way of assuring three square meals a day and an income to send steady money to their families on the other side of the border.

Mexican law does not permit the drafting of foreigners, although sons of immigrants can be drafted. Mexican military service consists of two hours of drill every Sunday morning for one year.

Today is Saturday, March 2, the 62nd day of 1968 with 304 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning star is Venus. The evening stars are Mars, Saturn and Jupiter.

The frontier hero of Texas, Sam Houston, was born on March 2, 1793.

On this day in history:

In 1927 Babe Ruth of the New York Yankees signed a $70,000 contract, making him the highest paid baseball player up to that time.

In 1943 the battle of Bismarck Sea began. Before it was over American airmen destroyed a Japanese convoy of some 21 ships.

A thought for the day: French novelist Andrew Marouis said, "Housekeeping in common is for women the acid test."

Hold-Up Play In Three No-Trump Good Advice Also At Four Hearts

As an experienced player you know how helpful it is to refuse the first trick in the enemy's long suit at a notrump contract.

The play is not so obvious when you have a long trump suit to protect you against their suit, but the hold-up play may still be advisable to prevent a ruff.

HEART LEAD

West opens the eight of hearts, and East puts up the queen. If you're sitting in a very comfortable chair you may be sleepy enough to win the first trick. This play would cost you the game and rubber.

You get to dummy with a club to lead the queen of spades for a finesse. West wins with the king of spades and leads his other heart to the king. Back comes a heart, and West ruffs.

You must eventually lose a diamond trick, and your best course is to raise an eyebrow at East. "Pretty skimpy opening bid, my friend," you say in a jocular tone. You may get enough of a laugh to distract your partner's attention from the fact that you should have made the contract.

SIDE ISSUE

If your partner looks thoughtful, tell him that on second thought you should have led out the ace and another trump instead of taking the trump finesse. This would protect you if West held K-x of trumps instead of K-x-x, but the point is unimportant in the actual hand.

If your partner still looks thoughtful, you can do nothing about it. He will tell you that you should refuse the first trick.

SINGLETON HEART

You can say that West might have held a singleton heart, but he will point out that doubletons are far more common than singletons.

If East wins the first trick and returns a heart, you win with the jack and return the queen of spades. Whether you finesse or not, you are safe. When West takes his king of spades he cannot lead hearts and he cannot get East in to give him the ruff.

Students Learn By Working In An Office

College Of Marin Program Offers Participants Valuable Job Experience

How do you break into the office clique?

Should you participate in office gossip?

What is the proper office wardrobe?

When your boss makes a grammatical error in dictation, should you correct it?

YOUNG PEOPLE asking these questions are sophomore students at College of Marin in Kentfield, members of a class in office work experience, a program developed last fall as a section of the business and economics curriculum. They are learning answers by direct business exposure to questions that may seem obvious to the seasoned office worker.

The students are skilled, but lack on-the-job experience, according to Martha Arfsten, instructor, who is fast proving her philosophy that the instructor's responsibilities to the student can extend beyond teaching and out into the community or the productive field where eventually the well adjusted citizen will assume his natural role.

Her efforts have produced "work stations" with Marin business firms. There the student works a minimum of 15 hours a week at the prevailing hourly rate of pay offered by the employing firm. Mrs. Arfsten stresses that the course is not a job placement service for students with financial problems. To be admitted to the class, students must be sophomores and must be enrolled full-time at the college.

IF EMPLOYERS were reticent in the beginning, they soon were praising the program, reports Mrs. Arfsten.

Many Marin firms hire high school and college students on a regular basis, she notes. "We presented our program offering them a skilled worker with the advantage of instructor supervision. We ask the firms to make a periodic written evaluation of the student's efforts on the job, and we meet with them to discuss the student a least twice during the semester."

Twelve students, including one boy, enrolled in the fall, and the number increased to 21 (with two male students) for the spring semester. Employing firms range from United Ambulance Service in San Rafael to the Marin County district attorney's office.

A HOME base is provided by the classroom.

Students meet there weekly for a session that includes dialogue on the surprises, goofs and highlights of the week's work experience.

Students gain self-confidence overnight, Mrs. Arfsten has found. They face new experiences in the business world, and are often surprised themselves to find they really are capable of functioning in an adult society.

THE WEEKLY classroom sessions give them an opportunity to discuss any mutual insecurities that might exist.

P. M. Casey, operations manager at United California Bank in San Rafael, says these students bring fresh ideas with them that could help a business gain a new perspective on an old job. Given the opportunity, they convey these ideas in a variety of ways, he adds.

He encouraged Lois Rand of Larkspur, who worked during the fall semester as a bank teller, to make suggestions. She contributed, he says, and was accepted as a regular member of the staff. She was guest of honor at a surprise farewell party staged by the employees when she left at the end of the semester.

Students Carolyn Kutlik, right, and Linda Wishart put into everyday practice office techniques learned in the classroom at College of Marin. Both girls spent the fall semester working part-time at the E. D. Bullard Co., Sausalito, while carrying full class loads.

DENISE DADDARIO didn't venture far from the school environment while combining studies and job responsibilities. She learned some of the techniques of librarianship, as well as employer-employee rapport, while working at the Ross Elementary School library.

College Workers Win Employers' Praise

Beedle says he measures the student-worker by such things as getting to work on time, and how she handles the mundane tasks as well as the more interesting ones.

"If she proves herself, she'll get a promotion, and after graduation, we will attempt to recruit her for full-time employment," he states.

TO THE instructor, pointed questions asked of the employer such as "what do you like about her most?", and "what are her special weaknesses?" can bring out hidden or undeveloped skills or abilities.

Mrs. Arfsten, an advocate of work experience for instructors as well as students, worked as a secretary for Standard Oil of California this past summer while participating in a similar program for instructors at San Francisco State College.

She quotes statistics revealing that close to 90 per cent of office workers dismissals from first jobs are directly related to the intangible technique of getting along and fitting into the pattern of business activity. The human relations factor, so often overlooked, ranks high on the ratings list when evaluating a prospective employee, in her opinion.

ONE SEMESTER of work experience can make a world of difference in student orientation, she adds. "They learn work attitudes and know what is expected of them while on the job, and these are our primary goals," says Mrs. Aristen.

The students must compete for the jobs offered by the firms, just as do the non-students who are looking for part-time work. They prepare resumes and are interviewed and rated on a competitive basis.

One important requirement Mrs. Arfsten makes of each student is that they hand in an historical study of the employing firm. After all, the teacher says, if a student worker can view his job in perspective, he is a more valuable member of the working staff.

"How Can I Remove Lipstick Stain?"

Lipstick smeared or smudged on your dress, suit or blouse can be a stain that is most difficult to remove. There are many different types of lipsticks, but most of them contain fats, oils, waxes and dyes. Fats, oils and waxes can be removed with little difficulty unless the stain has been permitted to remain in the fabric for a long time.

It is the dye in lipstick that causes real trouble. It may penetrate and dye the fabric while fats, oils and waxes ride on the fabric surface. Removal of the lipstick dye depends upon the color and type of fabric.

You should not attempt to remove lipstick stain with water. Consult your drycleaner about it immediately. The best preventive is to use lip protectors when putting on or taking off garments in a retail shop.

YOU NEED NOT wait until late spring or summer when tourists throng to Muir Woods National Monument to enjoy the big trees and other spectacles of nature that await visitors there. In fact, says Ida Geary, nature enthusiast, Muir Woods presents a different, in many ways more fascinating face, during the rainy season of winter and early spring. (Independent-Journal photo)

IN THE RAINY SEASON

A Different Time And Route For Visit To Muir Woods

(Editor's Note: The following article by Ida Geary, publications editor, writer and nature enthusiast, was prepared for her forthcoming book, "Marin Trails," a collection of outdoor Marin explorations to be published this spring.)

By IDA GEARY

The best time to visit Muir Woods is in the winter after the first heavy rains or in early spring.

And the best way to get the full flavor of the redwood forest community is to come in by the back door, or even to circle it before entering.

IF YOU CAN'T see Marin County's only first-growth redwoods any other time but summer and if you must enter at the visitors' center and take the Main Trail head on, still don't miss it. But if you have a choice of times, it will be green and lush in the winter and early spring, and with fewer people. And with more time, try these two longer ways and explore the upper reaches.

Number One — Highway 1 through Mill Valley to Muir Woods National Monument. Just south of the parking area pick up the Dipsea Trail going west, walk its easy grade to 1,400-foot elevation, leave it at the Ben Johnson Trail for the return to Marin Trail along Redwood Creek. This is a four to five mile circle of the park.

Number Two — Highway One to Panoramic Highway to the road to Camp Alice Eastwood in Mount Tamalpais State Park, near Mountain Home. The state park curves around the national monument. If you are with a group, and have made advance arrangements, you can drive down two miles to the camp named after California Academy of Sciences' famed botanist and park there. If you are individual, walk in to the camp and then continue down another mile and a half along the Fern Creek Trail to Muir Woods. Less than a mile's walk from the junction of Fern Creek and the Main Trail brings you to the entrance and parking area. Be foresighted: shuttle a car to the parking area for your return — or hike back up the four-and-a-half miles.

FOR EITHER route in winter or cooler spring weather, wear two pairs of socks and waterproof shoes, and dress as for a cold place. Take along a hot lunch drink.

On the Dipsea you climb up out of the park, watch the redwoods dwindle out, replaced first by Douglas fir, then bay and live oak, and finally by chaparral. You come out up on top, with vistas of open rolling hills and the ocean to the west,

A Visit To Muir Woods

OUT ON THE open hills in early March, especially on rocks, tops of small bushes and on fences, look for western bluebird looking like a small blue robin, its fellow thrush, in a small flock of five or six.

As for Number Two, you start first in chaparral, then descend through the smaller redwoods of the hillside, tanbark oak, madrone and manzanitas, and finally reach the giant redwoods on the floor of the canyon, where they overshadow everything else.

IN WINTER and early spring, first Fern Creek Trail and then the Main Trail will be soft, wet, and spongy with layers of multi-colored leaves: yellow big leaf maple, narrower brown tanoak, and bay, soft round pale hazelnut, and the tender green scale-like leaves fallen from the very tops of the redwoods in contrast with the darker green sprays from the lower branches.

The leaves appear so different, those from the top and those at the bottom of redwood trees, it is hard at first to believe they are from the same tree.

In winter, you will see fetid adderstongue blooming along Fern Creek Trail, and spectacular displays of mushrooms: white-gilled aminitas and tiny mycenas in the leaves, and on the dark mossy logs, huge shelf-like oyster mushrooms and blobs of orange-colored witches' butter.

HIGH UP IN a redwood tree you may see a whole forest of licorice fern — its roots smell like licorice — growing along a slanting branch.

The large sword fern is all over and the even larger Woodwardia at the water's edge. Golden-backed fern is in crevices.

Two plants have heart-shaped leaves: the smaller one is redwood violet, the larger shiny clover-like plant is Oxalis, redwood sorrel. Massive redwoods are as much dependent on these tiny plants as they are on reaching the sky.

IF IT HAS rained heavily before your visit, look for silvery salmon in Redwood Creek. They come in to spawn at the mouth of the creek at Muir Beach, usually starting in December.

Redwoods have no taproot but instead broad shallow roots just under the surface of the ground. When you know this you want to step softly and, in winter or spring, when the paths are wet and spongy, you not only want to, you do.

IDA GEARY prepared these ink prints as illustrations for her soon-to-be-published book, "Marin Trails." Despite their lack of similarity, both are of the coast redwood, the big tree for which Muir Woods is world renowned. At top, the scale-like top leaves, in bottom drawing, a spray from lower on the redwood.

She Teaches Yoga To Marinites

Petite Westerner Masters Ancient Eastern Philosophy

By DON KEOWN

The concept most westerners hold of a guru or teacher of yoga is that of an elderly male from the Far East, solemn, bearded, robed and sandaled.

Some Marin students of this ancient system of exercise and philosophy have a very different idea of a guru, derived from the appearance and personality of their own teacher.

Jan Kohloff is young, feminine, petite, vivacious, and very much a westerner, in dress and speech, despite her mastery of the Eastern teachings.

WIFE OF Roland Kohloff, the tympanist with the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, and mother of two children, Mrs. Kohloff, a former professional singer, has introduced scores of Marinites to yoga through the classes she conducts in a number of its communities.

She says: "I thank God for yoga. It has done so many wonderful things for us. And I want to share it with as many as possible."

She traces her own interest in yoga back to her teen years and to a boy friend who was studying the philosophy and its practices.

CATCHING something of his enthusiasm, she took a few yoga "lessons" from him, and also read some books on the subject.

For a time, then, Jan left and nearly forgot yoga. But a few years later when she did return to it, it was for "keeps," and with a new depth of involvement. This time she found the right, stimulating teacher.

HER HUSBAND had been taking therapy in San Francisco from Anna Kaye in an effort to strengthen his eyesight — no minor concern for a symphonic musician who must read musical scores from a distance.

"After six weeks, he was able to throw his eye-glasses away," Mrs. Kohloff says of her husband's therapy.

It was that arrangement which, in turn, brought Mrs. Kohloff into contact with Anna Kaye's husband, Leon Kaye, a much respected San Francisco guru and spiritual leader.

"I DON'T remember just when or how I learned that Mr. Kaye was a yoga teacher," she says, "but when I did, I could see immediately that he was the guru I had needed. My interest in yoga flared anew. I wanted to get back into it." Kaye, Polish-born, had studied throughout the world including India.

While Leon Kaye did teach small classes, Mrs. Kohloff enrolled for private lessons at his suggestion. "I was happy and healthy, without problems," she recalls, "still I felt this great desire to get back into yoga."

Within a few weeks, Kaye was telling her: "You are going to be a great yoga teacher."

SINCE THEN, Jan Kohloff has been striving to make her guru's prophecy come true.

"It was a shock to me to hear such a prediction from a teacher I so greatly respected," she recalls. "I was flattered, and I was determined to justify his confidence in me."

Yoga thus became more and more a part of Mrs. Kohloff's life. Her friends began to learn of her involvement.

"AND WHATEVER we talked about, sooner or later the conversation seemed to swing around to yoga," she says. "There is a great curiosity on the part of the public concerning yoga."

Consequently, she began receiving requests from her friends for instruction. Her first teaching, then, took place in her home — then in Mill Valley — with neighbors and friends as students.

After six to eight months of such informal teaching, Mrs. Kohloff was contacted by the Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Department. The department had lost its yoga instructor. Would Mrs. Kohloff take over? She would.

"SO THAT was how it all began," she says, "with two classes in Mill Valley."

Her schedule of classes snowballed.

The two classes in Mill Valley became five, along with two classes in San Rafael and another two in Terra Linda. A morning class for housewives in Novato resulted in a demand for

From the relaxed lotus posture, the yoga practioner can indulge in the all-important breathing exercises or engage in meditation, also a key facet of yoga. a second class.

In addition, Mrs. Kohloff is in demand among smaller, special groups, such as the women at Shelter Bay, the teachers from Mill Valley's Marin Terrace School, or the class that gathers in a photographic studio in San Francisco on Friday nights.

"I HAVE classes every single week night," she says, "and on weekends, individuals often call at my home for guidance."

What is the appeal of yoga? Mrs. Kohloff describes it this way:

"IT IS A very involved thing. The main goal is self-realization or union with your higher self. But so many wonderful things happen along the way on the road to that goal.

"Yoga has value in so many areas — in good physical health, both internal and external; in emotional stability and balance of mind, in the rejuvenation aspect that has such strong appeal for many, in its spiritual elements."

Mrs. Kohloff says she began by teaching simply Hatha or the physical side of yoga. "But the students made it plain that they wanted more. That was obvious. So we began to delve into the philosophical and spiritual aspects as well."

Will yoga work for everyone?

"If you are ready for it, it works," Mrs. Kohloff answers. "It takes a person who is somewhat disciplined to begin with, and possessing a kind of flexibility, more of mind than body."

ONE OF the best known of the yoga exercises is the headstand, which teacher Jan Kohloff, the demonstrator here, says relieves pressure on the lower back and vital organs, and stimulates the mental powers.

SHE ADDS that "some extremely intellectual people have a hard time with something like yoga."

But she says: "We do attract people who are highly intelligent." School teachers are especially well represented among her students.

The results of two classes for children she describes as "fantastic" and her experience

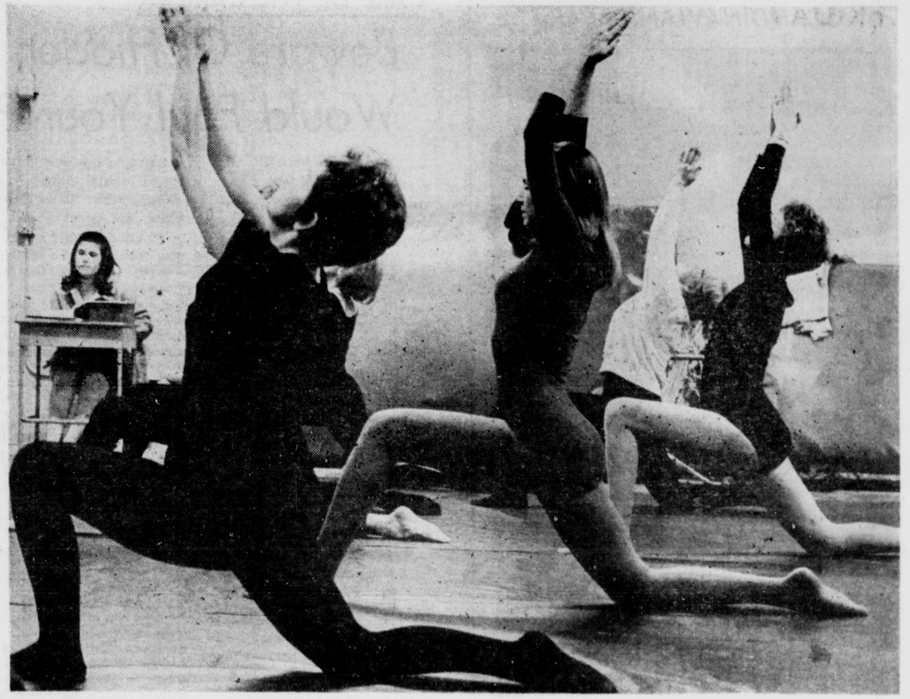
A CLASS OF yoga students assume the relaxing posture, stretched out on the floor mats. It is, teacher Jan Kohloff says, "more revitalizing than a nap." She is naming specific body parts and organs, upon which the students then concentrate while relaxing and relieving tensions.



SOME BEGINNING students of yoga practice "the wing," one of the basic postures they will learn to master. They are members of a San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department-sponsored class that meets in the San Rafael High School gymnasium.

"THERE IS never a discipline problem," she says.

Her own son, she adds, once severely asthmatic, has not had to visit his doctor since he took up yoga.

The person taking up yoga seriously should be prepared to devote at least half an hour a day to the practice, she advises. "It is an individual thing," she says, "but the more time you give to it, the happier you are."

BOOKS AND television programs offer a good introduction to yoga, she believes, especially in that they stimulate interest in the subject. But she also warns that the neophyte practicing without the supervision of a teacher or guru runs the danger of "overtrying" and injuring himself if he does not exercise care. "There must be a complete lack of tension," she advises, "a sort of gentleness to yourself."

"To really learn yoga properly, you should have a teacher," she declares.

Yoga teachers usually offer their services at a most reasonable fee, she adds, because it is part of the spirit of the movement to want to share the philosophy with others.

THE KOHLOFFS now reside on a Novato ranch. Roland sometimes assists his wife with her work.

She says that, like many followers of yoga, she aspires eventually to visit India, the seat of the knowledge that has spread throughout the world.

"But for the time being," she adds, "I am content here, working with my own teacher. I still have much to learn from her. And I am still developing my own approach to teaching."

"THE BOW," another important yoga posture, is practiced by Jan Kohloff's students in the San Rafael High School gymnasium. Note the varying degrees of success the students are having with the exercise. But all, says Jan Kohloff, are benefiting. And the newer students will continue to improve as they practice the movement and as their bodies become more limber and lithe.

CLASS MEMBERS work on the lotus position, as performed before them by their guru, Jan Kohloff. Mastery of this fundamental yoga posture is all important for the students, since it is a requisite for meditation and for the deep breathing exercises. Again the students show varying degrees of adeptness and of experience with the movement.

TEACHER JAN KOHLOFF reads to her relaxed students, using the soft and pleasing voice that once made her a professional singer. When so relaxed, say the students, it is difficult to keep from dropping off to sleep. But the relaxation, says the young teacher, is better than an actual nap. working with them as "delightful."

"THERE IS never a discipline problem," she says.

Her own son, she adds, once severely asthmatic, has not had to visit his doctor since he took up yoga.

The person taking up yoga seriously should be prepared to devote at least half an hour a day to the practice, she advises. "It is an individual thing," she says, "but the more time you give to it, the happier you are."

BOOKS AND television programs offer a good introduction to yoga, she believes, especially in that they stimulate interest in the subject. But she also warns that the neophyte practicing without the supervision of a teacher or guru runs the danger of "overtrying" and injuring himself if he does not exercise care. "There must be a complete lack of tension," she advises, "a sort of gentleness to yourself."

"To really learn yoga properly, you should have a teacher," she declares.

Yoga teachers usually offer their services at a most reasonable fee, she adds, because it is part of the spirit of the movement to want to share the philosophy with others.

THE KOHLOFFS now reside on a Novato ranch. Roland sometimes assists his wife with her work.

She says that, like many followers of yoga, she aspires eventually to visit India, the seat of the knowledge that has spread throughout the world.

"But for the time being," she adds, "I am content here, working with my own teacher. I still have much to learn from her. And I am still developing my own approach to teaching."

TEACHER JAN KOHLOFF reads to her relaxed students, using the soft and pleasing voice that once made her a professional singer. When so relaxed, say the students, it is difficult to keep from dropping off to sleep. But the relaxation, says the young teacher, is better than an actual nap. CARE OF THE CAMERA

Beware Of Hidden Perils That Would Foul Your Photography

The Travel Pages

By IRVING DESFOR

Soon it will be go-go-go vacation season, a time to be wary of lurking perils ready to pounce on your camera and put it out of commission: heat and humidity, salt water spray and grains of sand.

It's a time of jostling, bumping, dropping or leaving behind.

WHEN YOU'RE aware of potential accidents and what carelessness or forgetfulness can lead to, steps can be taken to avoid mishaps. The dangers are not new and warnings have been sounded before but since we're dealing with automated equipment in an age of automation, this is an automatic annual reminder.

In fact, extra care is necessary because modern automatic cameras depend on built-in sensitive meters, delicately balanced needles and tiny gears. They can be thrown off balance easily by a hard bump or a small fall.

This can happen if the camera is tossed onto an auto, train or plane seat and if the brakes are applied suddenly or the plane hits an air pocket.

THE REMEDY: anchor the camera firmly when it's placed in any moving vehicle so it can't bounce around or drop.

On vacation, "little drops of water, little grains of sand. . . . " are great to romp, swim and play with in pools, boats and beaches — but keep them out of cameras!

Just a few grains of sand can worm their way into a shutter mechanism or tiny gear and put a camera out of operation. And flying spray from a fast moving boat can seep into a camera and gum up its works.

OF COURSE a camera should be handy for beach and boat pictures but it could be protected when in use as well as when put aside between pictures.

If there are breezes blowing, fine sand and spray often tag along but they can be blocked by body interference. Or the camera can be operated while encased in a pliable plastic bag with the lens poking clear.

An extra safety measure for lenses is the addition of a skylight or haze filter (1A). It serves a double purpose: It absorbs some of the excess blue light in the atmosphere giving better, more natural color rendition without affecting exposure in any way. And since it may be left on the lens for other picture taking, it serves as a shield against fingerprints, dust, sand and spray.

IF SCRATCHED or marred, it is far easier and cheaper to replace the skylight filter than a lens!

When not in use, film supply as well as camera should be stowed away in protective custody in an insulated type of bag or case. Keep it out of the sun's path, of course, but remember a shady area may not remain shady as the hours go by.

You can pack silica gel with your films to absorb any moisture from the air, both before and after they have been exposed.

Air-conditioned hotel and motel rooms are a blessing in summer heat. But it can be a mixed blessing, some people discover as their body systems react to a sudden change from cold to hot. Cameras and films may react too.

EQUIPMENT kept overnight in an air-conditioned room may have moisture condensation on the lens surfaces when first brought to the heat of outdoors. It'll disappear shortly by evaporation so don't start taking pictures immediately without checking the lens first.

Since accidents do happen on vacation and people do leave belongings behind in a restaurant or hotel or when rushing to make a bus, train or plane, it's a good idea to have back-up insurance.

Camera floater policies are relatively inexpensive and though they cannot bring back lost picture opportunities at least they'll replace a lost camera.

The British Travel Association reported 717,000 American tourists came to Britain during the first nine months of 1967, or 10 per cent more than the same period in 1966.

EVERYBODY RIDES A HORSE IN IDAHO

Those Idahoans have such lean, hardy figures, rosy cheeks, tanned faces, and a healthy spring in their step go because . . . everybody rides in Idaho.

With thousands of trails ranging from the friendly bridle path in the city park to the rugged challenge of the wilderness area, Idaho is the most "ride-able" state in the nation. Every year hundreds of Idahoans and their out-of-state friends pack their gear behind the saddle and explore the unbounded acres of Idaho's refreshing mountains and streams at a four-footed pace.

THE HORSE came into Idaho from the Spaniards in Mexico long before white man set foot in the land and has been a major form of transportation since the earliest days.

The cattle industry is one of Idaho's largest. And today, as in the early days, the horse and rider are vital in the roundups and brandings and cattle drives. Out of this grew the tradition of the rodeo. All of the various riding events such as calf roping, bull throwing, cow cutting were a vital part of the rider's range life.

Idaho has 44 counties and nearly every one has a county fair with a rodeo or a horse show combined. The colorful names of these events are enough to stir interest in the most conservative of the office chair set: Whoopee Days!, Days of the Old West, Salmon River Days, Sagebrush Days, Grangeville Border Days, Little Britches Rodeo, The Biggest Little Rodeo in Idaho, The Snake River Stampede and a hundred others.

ANNUALLY THE various rodeos around the state elect queens on their ability to ride and from these queens is chosen Miss Rodeo Idaho who represents Idaho in the Miss Rodeo America contest.

The Palouse Valley country in the neck of the state is the home of one of the finest breeds of horses in the world — the Appaloosa. And besides many fine Appaloosa Horse Clubs the state boasts the National Appaloosa Headquarters in Moscow, Ida.

There are more than 70 riding clubs in Idaho with thousands of members riding just for the pleasure of it in parades and fancy drills at rodeos and fairs.

The many dude ranches and riding stables around the state offer riding opportunities for everyone from the greenhorn to the expert with excellent instruction if you so desire.

RIDING IS a tradition in Idaho, and these teen-agers and younger boys belonging to the El-capa Riding Club show off their "no hands" style.

Keep Your Automobile Sleek And Shiny

As passers-by stop near the showroom window of brand-new cars, they smile and point at one model or another with a finish sparkling like the crystal-clear waters of a lovely lake: "That's the car I want."

Once you've got the car you want, get in there and rub, advises the National Automobile Club, to maintain a finish upon which you see the reflection of your face.

GET IN there and give your car a thorough washing and waxing. When first faced with what appears a complicated task, don't scratch your head, shrug your shoulders.

Where to begin seems your greatest puzzle. Begin with the simple, the logical, for warming up to the more difficult steps at hand. What could be simpler than determining the detergent to use? Just be sure to choose one without bleach, for this additive can dry the paint.

Get set to dive into the mainstream of the job, hosing down the whole car with water. As you do the washing itself, you might whine that it's too time-consuming. But maybe you're going about it all wrong.

TRY THE top-to-bottom sequence to cut as much as 25 minutes off the time needed for doing a haphazard job.

Grab that sponge and start washing the top, doing a section at a time. Then hose off, removing the excess water with a chamois. Going about it in this way eliminates water spotting, keeps foreign substances from the wash water. Wash those wheels last.

READY FOR the wax job? It won't be so bad if you do it right.

Before you even begin, examine the paint for small chips and scratches, harmful as corrosion points unless sealed promptly. Remove all dirt and chalked paint.

Now's when you start the actual waxing. With a firm circular motion, spread the wax over the top surfaces to assure proper cleaning, wiping with a clean, dry cloth. By turning the cloth often, you'll avoid smearing the old paint and dirt, leaving a spotty finish.

ALL THROUGH with that? Next comes waxing the bottom of your car. Make things easy for yourself and sit on a small stool. A bent-over posture hinders you from seeing well enough, keeps you from applying enough strength. Beyond question, this area needs waxing the most, being subject to the most water, the most grime, the most road tar.

With the proper methods of washing and waxing a car in mind, you still have a question: How often to give this care?

For preventing rust from getting a foothold, washing once a week proves best. To guard against unnecessary wear on the paint, waxing every three or four months should do it.

WITH ITS thin, transparent coating, wax shields the paint from the air, reduces chalking or oxidation. Use a good "hard wax," for the harder the wax is to apply, the longer it will last.

Then take your gleaming, spanking-clean car out on the road and let others see how it glitters.

One Way To Ruin Your Vacation Trip

The California State Automobile Association interviewed drivers along Route 66 and found 30 per cent had spent 16 continuous hours behind the wheel.

Budgeting the daily mileage adds to both enjoyment and safety on a trip, the CSAA says.

Jack Kerouac Disappoints Fan With Latest Novel On Duluoz

By DON KEOWN

VANITY OF DULUOZ by Jack Kerouac; Coward-McCann, 280 pages, $5.50.

Ever since we first read "On the Road" a number of years back, we have been a fan of Jack Kerouac.

We found in his books a sense of excitement that, for us, far outweighed the eccentricity of his grammar and punctuation that was so sharply criticized by the more orthodox literary establishment. Nor did we share the abhorrence that some felt for Kerouac's "beat" philosophy. It seemed to us that he was restating emphatically positions and reasoning that had been reached by a great many young people of his time.

And that society would be better served if those who were so angered or repelled by the Kerouac message would, instead, ponder it more carefully, and try to study out just why these young people were dropping from the mainsteam of American life.

After reading Kerouac's latest, "Vanity of Duluoz," we confess we now find ourselves appreciating him a good deal less.

There are several possible reasons for this partial disenchantment.

For one thing, Kerouac seems to be re-telling the same story he has told more than once before — the autobiographical account of the life of the young rebel Jack Duluoz. And it has lost its zing.

This new book focusses upon three phases in Kerouac-Duluoz's life — his school years when football was the all-important interest, World War II when he was a flop as a soldier but found at least some serviceable use as a merchant seaman, and finally the immediate postwar years in the New York underground scene in which the first stirrings of what was to become the Beat-Hipster movement were beginning to cause ripples.

Still, though the time stops with the setting of the stage for the "On the Road" years, it is nevertheless the same Kerouac-Duluoz who is the chief character, holding the same beliefs.

And rebels of the Kerouac-Duluoz stripe today seem in some respects almost quaint and outdated. There's another different kind of young Bohemian on the scene today — or rather, several other kinds. And they are the ones who command the interest of contemporary Americans who are attracted by the off-beat and the unorthodox.

Finally, Kerouac seems to have made a half-hearted effort to tone down some of the wilder aspects of his freewheeling writing style. A mistake. It only robs his rhetoric of its vitality, while still falling far, far short of being polished writing.

"Vanity of Duluoz" then is a disappointment to at least this one reader who has been an unabashed booster of Jack Kerouac in the past. But it should be added that we still find him far from the dullest writer around. It was no great struggle to read "Vanity of Duluoz" from cover to cover. Which is more than we can say for some of the other books being published and sold these days.

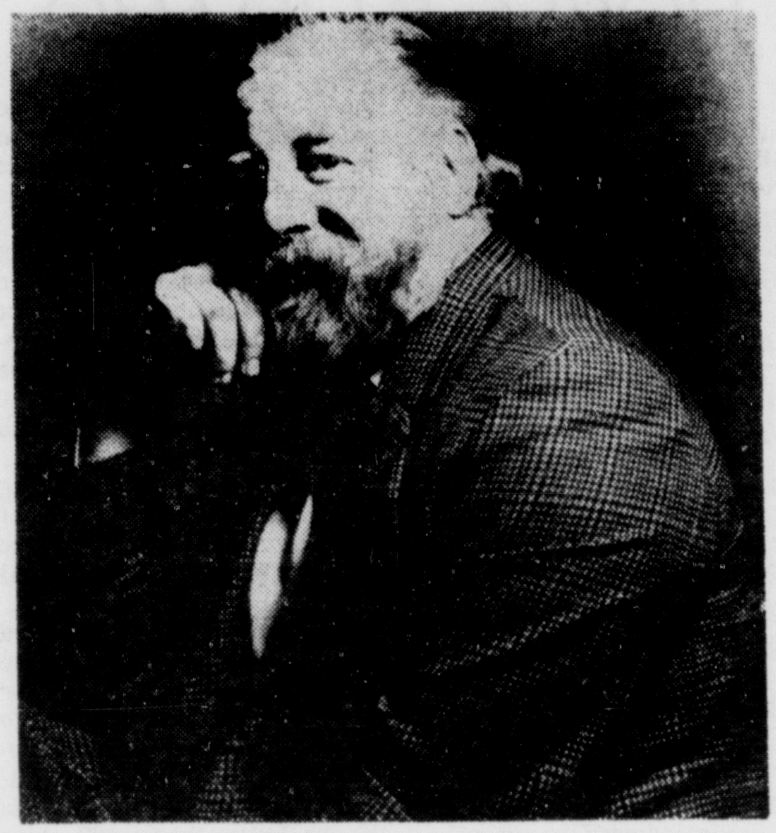
ONE ALL-NEW and two revised editions of previously published softcover travel books have been issued by Lane Magazine and Book Co. of Menlo Park.

The new guide is "Taiwan" as compiled by Mary Benton Smith and Frederic M. Rea in collaboration with the Sunset editors, and it deals at length with the capital city of Taipei, but also takes the reader to other less-known parts of the island. Along with the principal tourist sights, the book covers the history, culture, economics, government and sociology of the island. There is a calendar of annual events.

Revised are the popular guides on "New Zealand" and "Australia." Information has been brought up to date and expanded.

As with all Sunset books, these three are excellently and profusely illustrated. They sell for $1.95 each, and would make a splendid study package for the person planning a westward overseas trip. There's also plenty of material in them for armchair dreamers.

Sleuths & Suspense



DESMOND SKIRROW

I WAS FOLLOWING THIS GIRL by Desmond Skirrow; Doubleday, 258 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.

The way-out-thriller-spy-intrigue novel with lots of sadism and pseudo-government ideas makes the mystery and suspense scene more and more these days especially from British writers. There has to be plenty of sex, a bit of put-on, a lot of booze, a heroine more beautiful than life and a hero who defies death's blows.

Skirrow's Hero and Heroine are made of such magic stuff that, though they are bounced like rubber balls, they breeze through hundreds of predicaments as if they were cat and mouse in an animated cartoon; in one sequence they are skinned—in the next they are whole again.

Skirrow's story involves governments and apparently private eyes, and corporations that own the whole world. Everyone's after that beautiful heroine, Kiki Kondor, and hero John Brock tries to keep her off the thin ice. But there's enough humor and suspense to make the book undeniaby entertaining reading.

MAIGRET AND THE HEADLESS CORPSE by Georges Simenon; Harcourt, Brace and World, 183 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The English are the acknowledged masters of the crime novel genre, but across the channel dwells a writer who can hold his own in any company.

This Inspector Maigret yarn is not a new one, having been published in France in 1955. But this is its first American publication.

There's no great element of mystery in it. But the characterization is simply splendid. Wonderful Maigret is engaged in investigating the murder of a man whose dismembered body is dredged from the waters of a Parisian canal. His work brings him in contact with a fascinating woman, proprietress of a bistro and a prime suspect in the slaying. The relationship of police officer to suspect is drawn brilliantly.

Some New Books For The Juniors

Automobiles, and particularly racing cars, seem to hold a special fascination for many young Americans.

"Stock Car Racing: Grand National Competition" (Walck, $3.50) covers a particular facet of that sport, and covers it fairly well.

Author Robert B. Jackson has made a profession of writing about cars for young readers. He's best remembered for his splendid "The Remarkable Ride of the Abernathy Boys."

"Stock Car Racing" is not up to that, but it does provide a concise picture of the vehicles and the men involved in what is automobile competition's largest single division, and an explanation of the regulations and the conditions under which they function. Both action and still photographs accompany the text.

A fairytale illustrated with photographs? That is what you have in the new English edition of Selma Lagerlof's Swedish classic, "The Wonderful Adventures of Nils," (Doubleday, $4.95) as translated by Richard E. Oldenburg. The photos, in beautiful color, are from the camera of Hans Melmberg. Not only do they enhance the story of the lazy, thoughtless lad who gains new insights about life after meeting up with an elf, but they offer an impressive picture tour of Sweden as well. An exceptional project.

Robert Sargent has a knack for creating appealing animal characters. His latest is the title character in "The Small Seabird" (Scribners, $3.50). The little fellow finds himself over land and unable to locate his natural habitat, the ocean. But it turns into an adventure in which he makes a host of new animal friends. Sargent not only tells this little fantasy, but provides the charming illustrations as well.

With humorous verse and appealing pictures, Lynn Wheeling gives potential young travelers an account of what airliner trips are like in "When You Fly" (Little, Brown, $3.75). It is especially recommended for the child about to experience his or her first journey by air.

When Hate Accumulates

THE HOLOCAUST: The Destruction of European Jewry, 1933-1945, by Nora Levin; Crowell, 768 pages, $10. Reviewed by Larry Kramer.

Reviews Of New Reading

The Nazis destroyed six million Jews. Few raised a hand or a voice to stop them. We must ask why.

The build-up of the hatred of Jews by Christians, stimulated and fostered by theologians and clerics, is the focal point of "The War Against the Jew."

Dr. Runes catalogs a hate campaign in the style of Bierce's "Devil's Dictionary." Nora Levin in "The Holocaust" more dispassionately documents in detail what can happen when a people gone mad finds a "final solution" to the "problem" that their clergy have reminded them of from infancy through generations.

Runes is an intemperate writer, a polemicist, and "The War Against the Jew" is an intemperate book. Runes throws a harsh light on Christian doctrine that has damned all Jews for all times for a murder done one of them. Only Pope John XXIII comes off well, and his good work towards absolution of the Jews is shown to be undone by those who survive him.

Runes' book is important because it catches the magnitude of the continuous force of cumulative hate served up as piety. The hated ones become the symbols of evil and of danger and attacks upon them become holy acts sanctioned by the church.

Spain was to be made greater by the exclusion of the Jews; Germany's future was to be hallowed by its sought-for-"Judenrein" status. Basic cures for economic and social evils are painful and often slow in coming. Scapegoat cures or panaceas are ineffective, but they give ignorant and frightened people an object on which to spend their fury.

"The Holocaust" describes in agonizing detail the most recent and most thorough use of the scapegoat cure. The systematic destruction of European Jewry by the Germans during the twelve years of their "100-year Reich" revolts the mind. It is a story with many victims, many persecutors and few heroes.

Individual clergymen distinguished themselves here and there, but church leaders and politicians were more characterized by temporizing and by tacit approval than by Christian courage.

Only in Denmark, Finland and, to a lesser extent, Bulgaria did popular outrage prevent genocide. It was not a great churchman who forced Sweden to offer sanctuary to all Danish Jews; it was a great physicist — a great man — Niels Bohr who refused to leave Sweden to work with Allied scientists until that country publicly committed itself as an asylum.

Professor Levin describes in detail the efforts of the Jews to help themselves in Poland's ghettoes. She shows in words and pictures the consequences of their failure, and the world's failure.

MARSHAL VASILI Ivanovich Chuikov has authored his second book on World War II's Eastern Front fighting, this one "The Fall of Berlin."

A Success Story Of British Lord

LORD READING by H. Montgomery Hyde; Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 454 pages, $10. Reviewed by James E. Williams.

The success story of Rufus Isaacs, who was later to become the First Marquess of Reading, is unparalleled in British history.

Alone Isaacs' titles represented the glory of England. He was the first commoner since the Duke of Wellington to be elevated to the rank of a marquess. And he was the first Jew in England to become attorney general, lord chief justice, high commissioner and special ambassador to the United States and viceroy of India.

Born in 1860, the son of a fruit importer, Isaacs recovered from a $40,000 disaster on the stock market to become a member of the bar at 26 and, in 10 short years, a member of the Queen's Counsel. At the time of his death in Dec. 30, 1935, he had amassed the largest personal fortune of any barrister in English history.

Biographer H. Montgomery Hyde has presented a painstaking account in a clear, concise style. Thankfully the book is without the maze of footnotes which sometimes tend to bog the reader down.

As special ambassador to the U. S. during a part of World War I, Lord Reading played a major part in securing financing England needed in the early days of the war and to persuade the U.S. to send reinforcements to France.

During the Englishman's stay in Washington he became very close to President Woodrow Wilson's confidant, Col. Edward M. House. Their warm friendship continued to the end.

House, as Lord Reading came to observe, was the needed buffer for the sometimes cold and aloof Wilson.

After the war came the plum of his career, selection as viceroy of India. It was a glittering experience capped by a long tour of India by the Prince of Wales in 1922.

During Lord Reading's five years in India, ending in 1926, the nationalist movement by Mahatma Ghandi began to smoulder. The viceroy's assessment of the India leader points to England's latter course.

After an absence of four years from governmental affairs Lord Reading returned to service in 1931 at the age of 71 to accept the post of foreign secretary in J. Ramsay MacDonald's cabinet.

In nearly 50 years of public service, Lord Reading served his country with honor. No doubt his secret to success lay in his unquenchable spirit of determination. As he told a caddy during a round of golf a few years before his death questioning his lordship's ability to reach the green: "Not go for the carry? I have gone for the carry all my life!"

Another Chapter Of World War II

THE FALL OF BERLIN by Marshal Vasili I. Chuikov; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 261 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by James E. Williams.

Another chapter of World War II is put into focus through the eyes of one of Russia's most famous field generals, Marshal Vasili I. Chuikov. It was his 8th Guards Army which spearheaded the final push of the war in Europe.

Alistair Horne, in the foreword, points out there are few wartime generals alive today who have had so prolonged or intimate experience of battle. It was Chuikov's 62nd Army, later renamed the 8th Guards Ormy which played a key role in the defense and liberation of Stalingrad.

With such a notable background, Chuikov was given the honor of making the final push on Berlin from the East. His is an interesting account in military-worded style.

As on the Western front, the top command in the East often differed on strategy. Chuikov makes it clear that all was not harmony between him and Marshal C. K. Zhukov, commander of all the Russian armies. His desire to concentrate all his forces on Berlin was overriden by Zhukov. Chuikov claims Berlin could have been taken by mid-February, 1945, instead of May, had his plea been heeded.

One of the most interesting chapters in the book is the marshal's account of his personal negotiation with a Third Reich representative after Adolf Hitler's suicide.

Upon meeting General Krebs, chief of the German General Staff, Chuikov showed no surprise on hearing of Hitler's death, even though it was his first news of the suicide.

As Chuikov recounts: "I must admit that I did not know of Hitler's death. However in preparing myself for this meeting, I had determined that I would meet any unexpected moves calmly without showing the least shadow of surprise . . . but for Krebs it was a diplomatic smoke screen hiding the main and most important question. . . ."

While a student of military history might enjoy Chuikov's record more than the layman, the account does fill an important gap in the final defeat of Germany.

"The Fall of Berlin" is the second of two works by Chuikov. His first was "The Battle for Stalingrad."

Marin Grower Writes For The Fanciers Of Orchids

The Mill Valley resident chose orchids when he first began gardening some 15 years ago in the large solarium of his rented apartment in Chicago where he then lived. He's been at it ever since. And the pleasure and challenge that the hobby has given him are reflected in this informative book.

Kramer provides basic information on orchid culture, both indoor and outdoor. He provides as alphabetized description of the various species, preceded by a special separate chapter on the miniatures. He offers data on such specific subjects as exhibiting and photographing orchids, corsage-making, literature, greenhouse sources, prices and most important plant sources.

Kramer's directions on how to grow and care for orchids is concise and clear. Marinites should get added reassurance from the fact that the author is a resident of their own county, growing his orchids under our particular conditions. This is, of course, expecially important in regards to the outdoor suggestions.

SONGS OF LEONARD COHEN—Columbia CS 9533:

Leonard Cohen is a young Canadian novelist, poet, songwriter and performer who has recently received much attention due to several of his songs being performed successfully by American folk artists.

Judy Collins' discings of "Suzanne" and "Hey, That's No Way to Say Goodbye" (both on this LP) have created quite a stir in this area of the music world.

Cohen can be tender and tough at the same time; his poetry (all of the lyrics are printed with this LP) bears some resemblance to Bob Dylan's in that you are not to take what is said literally at all. Yet these are far from nonsense songs. One authority even compared Cohen to James Joyce.

He is a wonderful antidote to Rod McKuen. It must be realized though, that like McKuen, he can't sing worth a darn. But then Dylan wasn't such a great vocalist before his accident either, so don't let that stop you from entering Cohen's unique world.

THE WHO SELL OUT—Decca DL 74950:

This album cover deserves recognition as a new high in creativity. It illustrates each of the four Who members in commercials for products from acne cream to baked beans.

The beans ad is especially disgusting and hilarious.

Aurally, the disc inside continues this theme with parodies of British radio commercials and promotion announcements, some of them worked into very good rock numbers and others just gimmicks. Their big hit "I Can See for Miles" is included.

In general, the album isn't as frantic and high voltage as their earlier efforts, but shows another side of their talents very well.

THE CAKE—Decca DL 74927:

The Cake is a trio of Caucasian gals who have obviously been "packaged," with a style, arrangements, and plenty of publicity by Decca.

A number of recent groups coming on the rock scene are "created" in just such a way. The Monkees started it all, or rather one should say, the people who created the Monkees started it. Anyway, like the Monkees, the Cake is frequently very good and it is obvious a great deal of care, albeit care-by-committee, has gone into their "product."

They do straight rock, Baroque-influenced things, Supremes imitations, and some quite swinging Ray Charles-type belters. The backing is terrific and the sound smashing except for a bit of break-up in the treble.

THE HOBBITS — "Down to Middle Earth" — Decca DL 74920:

LEONARD COHEN

fairyland world of literature which is so popular with young people today.

But the flower-power type of music which would seem to be associated with Middle Earth is not the only bag in which the Hobbits swing. They also dig the Twenties' musical moods, and today's Motown sound is not foreign to them either. A combination of re-creation of older styles with a bit of a leg-pull is one of their fortes.

"THE BLUES" AND ALL THAT JAZZ, VOLUME I (1937-1947)—Decca DL 79230:

The new Decca Jazz Heritage series has been widely acclaimed by jazz critics around the country. With the bulging catalog of jazz giants which Decca has in their vaults, this project should have come out long ago in answer to similar series from Columbia and Victor.

One side of this LP contains female blues singers and the other male singers. The area of New York where the Decca studios were located was known at this time as "Swing Street." But this wasn't the sort of swing that Benny Goodman dispensed.

These city blues were crudely dubbed "race records" by the record business and were almost unknown to the Caucasian population. Now that's all changed, and one can laugh and cry with Rosetta Howard, who thinks "Men Are Like Streetcars;" Cousin Joe, who explains why "Box Car Shorty Shot Peter Blue;" and Blue Lu Barker, who tells how her man does the "Georgia Grind" (and that isn't how they make ice cream in Georgia).

Blues singer Trixie Smith has a voice amazingly similar to Janis Joplin of Big Brother and the Holding Company. Rather, vice versa, considering the difference in years.

The re-channelling for stereo is useless with most old 78s, but now that mono and stereo are the same price, it is often a difficult decision to not choose the stereo, thinking you are getting more for your money. And the new gadget for bringing life back into old discs which Columbia's engineers have developed really does seem to work stereophonic wonders.

POET'S CORNER

HELEN

Soft and charming melodies
Flow from your deft fingers,
And where you have touched the keys
Lovely music lingers.

You are friendship through the years,
You are song and laughter,
Whether joy or girlhood tears,
Memories followed after.

Silver-crowned our heads may be,
Winter-etched, our faces,
In your eyes I still can see
Happy childhood places.

Working With Concrete Without Trouble

The Handyman's Page

By Following These Tips, You'll Avoid The Pitfalls

If you're planning on working with concrete this spring or summer, clip out this article and save it.

You can avoid trouble and get good results by heeding the following bits of information:

The certain way to make a concrete mixture that will be weak and porous when it hardens is to use more water than is absolutely necessary. Using excessive water is a common error because a mixture of this kind seems more workable than one with less water.

CONCRETE SHOULD be put into position immediately after it has been mixed. A delay of even 30 minutes can affect the strength of the finished job.

Using a wood float on the concrete produces a rough surface. A steel trowel results in a smooth finish.

In grading to assure that rain water runs in the proper direction, don't rely on your eyes to get the proper slope. Always use a level.

THE "CURING" of concrete is one of the most important steps. This consists of keeping it wet for several days after it has been put into place, preventing premature drying. Cover the concrete with burlap or similar material as soon as it begins to set, then keep the covering wet.

An alternative is to sprinkle the concrete three or four times a day with a garden hose.

Oil paints don't work well on cement surfaces. Use a latex masonry paint or portland cement paint.

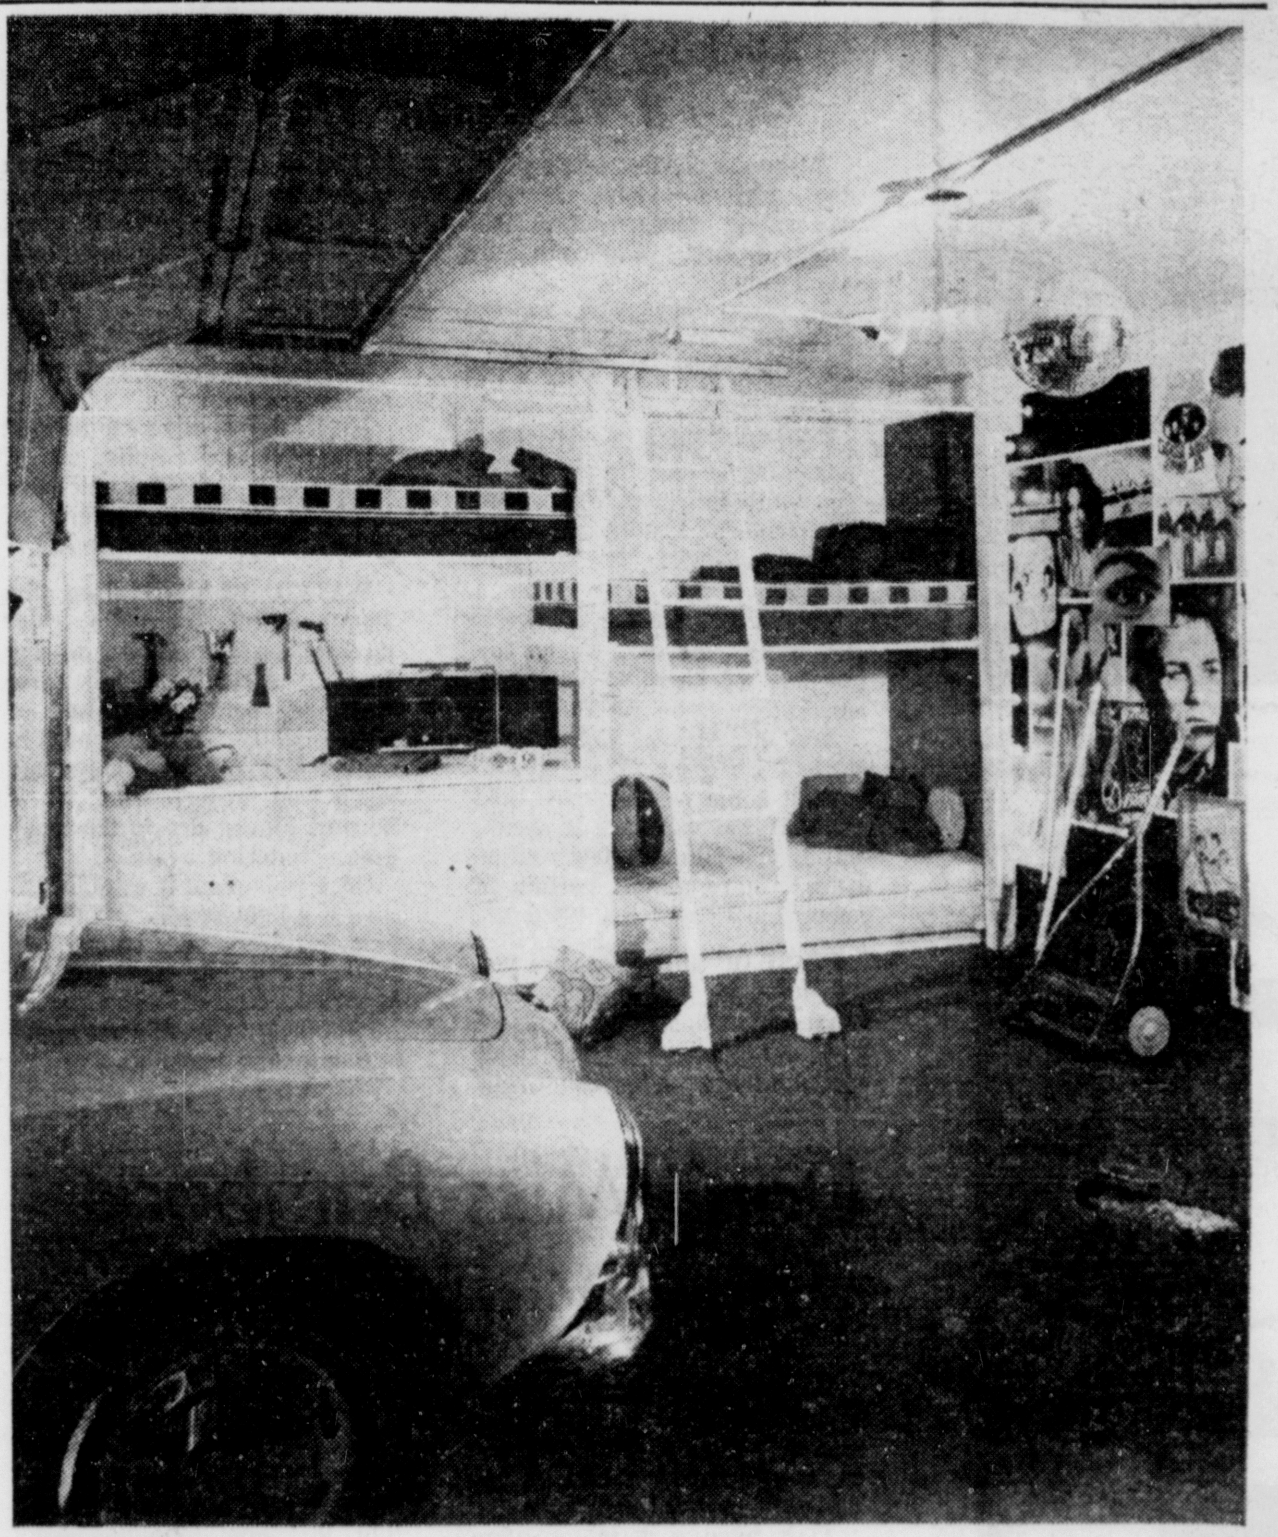
TO GET textured or unusual concrete surfaces, use such implements as a broom, brush, piece of pipe, cookie cutter, tin can or anything else your imagination can dream up. The impressions are made, of course, while the mixture is drying.

In most cases, it is better to wait until the concrete has just begun to set.

One home owner created an intriguing design by imbedding tree leaves in the wet concrete around the edges of a patio floor, then removing them as the mixture started to set.

YOU CAN buy concrete already mixed and requiring the addition of water; you can purchase the ingredients and mix them yourself; you can rent an electric mixer; or, for very large jobs, you can buy ready-to-pour concrete which will be delivered in a truck.

If you purchase the ingredients to mix, tell the dealer what the concrete is to be used for and he will advise you of the proper proportions.



THE FAMILY GARAGE goes on a youth kick. This unit has been converted into a teen recreation room, but still serves to cache the car as well as the kids. Designed by Lloyd Henson for The Englander Co., bedding manufacturer, and Callaway Mills, carpeting firm, the garage adds much-needed living space. Asymmetrical bunks have been built into one wall, along with a sink and cabinet unit. The bunks are really mattresses and box springs, slipcovered in sturdy, lively colored striped and solid duck. An adjacent wall is covered with campy blowup posters of teen idols and symbols. The carpet is a new indoor-outdoor floor covering of acrilan from Callaway—and you can park the car on it because stains, including oil leaks, can be wiped away.

A New Solution To Problem Of Room For Teens — Garage

The generation gap is expanding home horizons.

Family rooms are becoming more elegant, more formal and more often occupied by adults. So a new "out" has been found for the platter parties and guitar sessions younger members of the family thrive on.

THE "OUT" is convenient and within the scope of parental supervision. It's the family garage.

The latest idea for creating a youth-geared recreation area is a joint project by two home furnishings manufacturers: The Englander Co., which makes bedding, and Callaway Mills, which makes carpeting.

Lloyd Henson, A.I.D., of New York City has designed a teenage guest garage for the two firms. This has wall-to-wall acrilan plush carpeting; a wall of poster blowups of teen idols and symbols, and tiered bunk beds. The bunks are Englander mattress and box spring ensembles covered in sizzling stripes and solids of party-proof canvas.

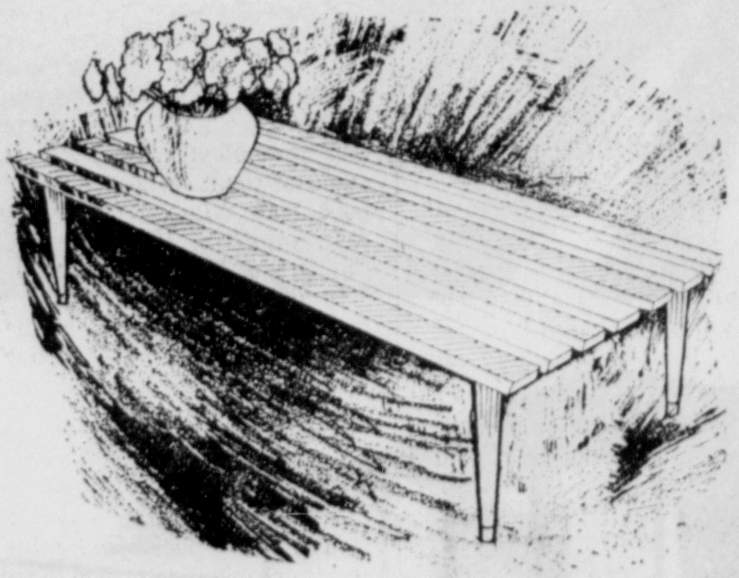
THE CARPETING is Callaway's "Ever Wher" pattern and is treated to be impervious to stains. It has been especially developed for indoor-outdoor use. To dramatize this, the interior designer shows a Volkswagen convertible right on the carpeted floor of the garage.

However, for actual use as a youth recreation area, the car should be temporarily removed from the premises for safety — and also for room-making reasons.

Toothpicks Out

Toothpicks used to be placed between ceramic tiles to properly space them when they were being installed. Now domestically made wall and floor tiles come equipped with built-in spacing lugs, known as "ears," on their edges.

Bright Ideas



THE SLAT coffee table is inexpensive as well as popular, especially when you buy it unpainted. The tables are usually made of seven long slats that form the table top with a gap between each. To paint, remove three slats, the center one and the second from the outside. Enamel the removed slats one color and the rest of the table another, using wood filler before applying the enamel. You will have a marvelous striped effect. Use your imagination for unusual color combinations and effects. But don't try to paint the table without removing the three slats, or you will be in a mess.

Our Most Popular House Plant Is The African Violet

Luckily, It's Not Difficult To Grow If You Follow These Rules

Always a popular house plant, the African violet is now decorating more homes than ever before. Especially in California.

In fact, according to the California Association of Nurserymen, it's the No. 1 house plant choice.

FOR ONE thing, its refreshing pastel flower clusters are almost constantly in bloom. White, pink, blue or purple shades in doubled, ruffled, fringed or single flowers.

Then there are the attractive evergreen leaves. Neat, low mounds of them, forming decorative green rosettes.

And the African violet is not difficult to grow. You have to give it some regular care, and the soil and exposure it needs; but if you follow a few routine rules, you're almost certain of success.

FIRST OF all, make sure you use an acid, loamy soil. Your nurseryman has handy bags of specially prepared African violet soil mix that makes potting your plants a breeze. But if you prefer to mix your own, use three parts leaf mold to one part of garden loam, adding small amounts of sand and bonemeal to the mix.

Keep your plants near an east window for best results; and, if the house is quite dry, increase humidity by setting plants on saucers filled with wet gravel.

WATER PLANTS from the top or below, but don't water directly on the crown of the leaves. African violets like water at room temperature or even slightly warmer, and you should wet the soil thoroughly when you water. Then let it become almost dry to the touch before watering again.

Once your plant is established, give it a light feeding of slightly acid fertilizer every two to four weeks. Feed only when the soil is moist.

THE MAGIC that landscape architects can create is illustrated in the two photographs above. In this case, the "exterior designers" are Katy and Paul Steinmetz of San Rafael. At top, a Mediterranean style home in Tiburon has been graced with a garden in keeping with the architecture, offering casual living with minimum maintenance. A masonry wall lends privacy to both entry court and swimming pool. In bottom photo, a San Rafael home was given the deck, the lawn, the sun protection and the privacy requested by owners. The deck is two-by-two redwood strips with one-eighth inch spacing, wide enough to drain, but not enough to catch spike heels. Lawn is pre-grown sod and concrete is exposed aggregate.

Don't Miss Bamboos When You Landscape

Bamboos, from the grass-like dwarf bamboo to the giant timber varieties, are among the most decorative additions we can make to our landscapes.

They have a dozen or more uses in the garden, and if you haven't tried growing one or another of them you are missing a good bet.

At ground level we have a dwarf bamboo which, given a moist soil to grow in, will form a dense cover in a very short time. It can be mowed like grass — to which all bamboos are related — and often should be kept compact.

ITS LOCATION in the garden should be chosen carefully, for it is a rampant spreader and will encroach upon neighboring plants. However, it is so attractive that its encroachment is often desirable.

A pot of dwarf bamboo is also an attraction on patio or deck. In the garden it is highly decorative beside a pool.

GOLDEN BAMBOO is one of the most useful and decorative in the family. We use it as a screen planting beside a drive or as a tubbed specimen on the deck, where its feathery grace can be viewed close at hand. Silhouetted against a window, this fine plant can be enjoyed from inside both day and night. Try it in a redwood tub or in a soy tub at the front step.

Related, but slightly more tender to frost, is the black bamboo which offers the same form and uses as golden bamboo except that the canes are decidedly black — highly unusual and unusually attractive contrasted with the green foliage.

Giant bamboos have a more limited use in the garden, but a single clump can be highly attractive when viewed from afar — across a spread of lawn or at the far end of a patio. These giants are both root-running and clumping, the latter of which most nurserymen recommend.

MOISTURE AND sun bring out the best in bamboos. Supply them, and you have something special.

Plan Your Observance Of Arbor Day

It Is Time For Tribute To The Tree

The observance of Arbor Day next Thursday will give every Marinite a reason to stop and consider the beauty of trees and how bleak our life would be without them.

It also gives us an excuse to organize tree-planting on a community-wide basis, or on our own block.

TREES ARE the most prominent features of any landscape, natural or man-made. We take comfort in their shade on warm summer days or use them to blunt the harshness of a winter wind.

Their silhouette against the sky lends a certain peace to any setting and if a view is framed by the branches of a tree, it is all that much better.

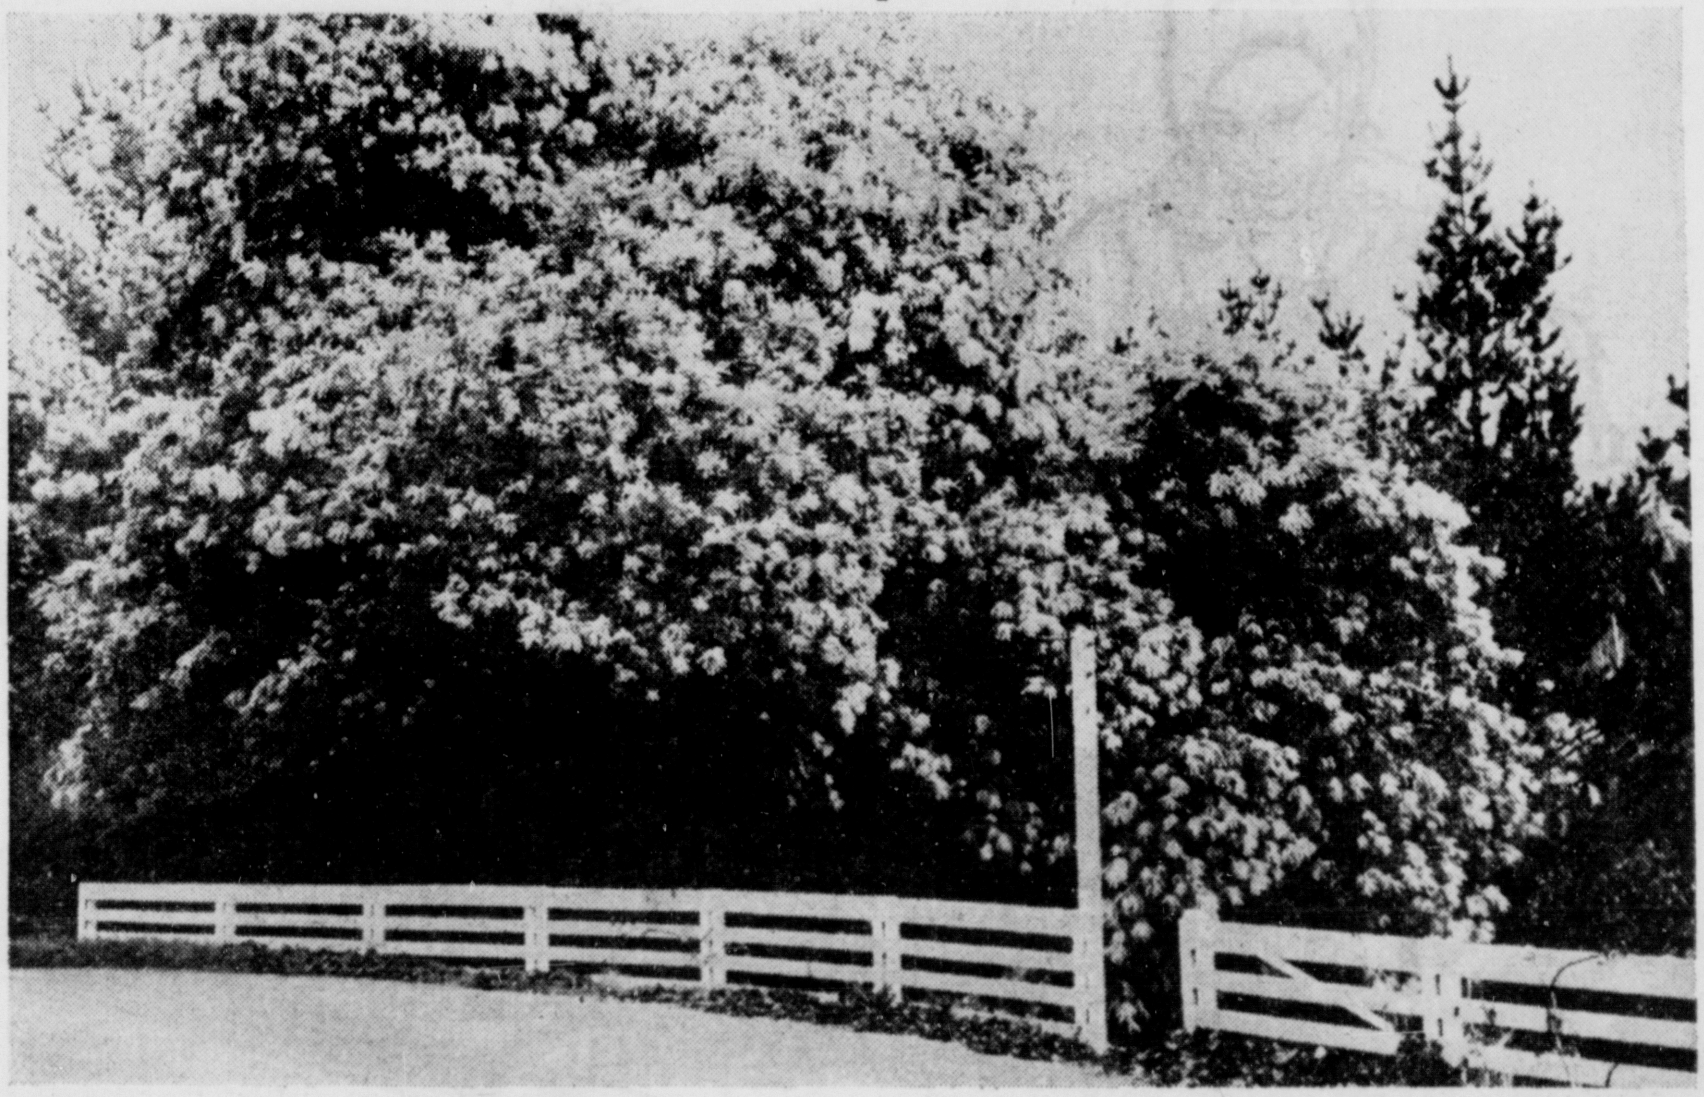
We rely on trees to anchor us on this earth more often than we realize, and setting aside one day a year to honor them seems small recognition.

IF ARBOR Day sets the wheels in motion for any community tree-planting effort, however, it has served a purpose.

On a personal level, we realize that trees serve other purposes than lining our streets; hence, Arbor Day can have meaning for the individual, too. Perhaps a fruit-bearing tree for the backyard is your best choice for celebrating the event, or one of the lovely flowering fruit trees, many of which are now available at nurseries.

Perhaps a clump of white birch in the front lawn, a decorative olive tree for the patio or a shade-giving ash for the sun-baked southwest corner of your home.

Any or all of these could be the goal of your personal observance of Arbor Day. Just don't let the day go by unmarked.



THOSE BRIGHT splashes of yellow that add such a colorful and attractive touch to the Marin landscape these days can be credited to the Bailey acacia. During late winter and early spring it is one of our most profusely flowering trees. There are a number of other useful members of the acacia family. March Is Month For Planting The Carnation

Spiciness is another name for carnations, or should be.

For there is no garden flower with a spicier fragrance, and few that are a greater delight to grow.

Nurserymen offer carnations as seedlings or as rooted cuttings, and the best time to plant them is during March and April.

THE SEEDLINGS are available in mixed or individual colors, while rooted cuttings are from special plants that offer unusual shades or striking blends of more than one color in a single flower.

Carnations are much like chrysanthemums to grow, in that they survive and bloom without attention but respond fabulously to certain basic growing techniques.

You should stake the plants at an early age to insure that growth is straight and upright. Ring staking — the use of three or four stakes around which string has been wound to form a core or ring in which the plants grow — is an excellent solution. Single staking and tying also produce good results.

PINCHING IS important — just as it is with chrysanthemums.

Lateral buds should be pinched off so that energy and growth are channeled into the terminal buds. Without pinching, the plants produce myriad small blooms and no big ones.

If you pinch out the tops of young plants when they are four six inches high, multiple trunks will develop, each of which will be topped eventually by one specimen flower, provided you pinch the side buds.

THE SOIL should be well drained and the bed in which you plant carnations should receive about the same amount of sun as your roses thrive in.

Carnations are members of the Dianthus family which also offers two other garden favorites, both with old-fashioned appeal. These would be the charming border pinks with their pink, white or even red single flowers, and Sweet William with its mass of single flowers forming a colorful head of bloom on each flower stalk.

All three members of the family are excellent cut flowers.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

- Set up a rose-care program now and take a vow to follow it through the coming months. Your nurseryman can help you.
- Plant field-grown clumps of delphinium and primroses now. Seedlings are also available.
- The next four to six weeks will be ideal for planting a new lawn in Marin.
- Summer blooming bulbs may be planted now. Consider tigridias in addition to the ever-popular gladiolus.
- Try tubbing some agapanthus so you can enjoy their lovely blue flowers on deck or terrace.
- If you have not already done so, prune your fuchsias.
